Italy Starts 'Big Push' In Greek War

CRITICAL TIME APPROACHED IN KORITZA SIEGE

Mountain Fighters Reported To Have Entered City of Trapped Army.

DECISIVE BATTLE

Italians Claim Advance on Northwest Front After Eight-Day Halt.

(By Associated Press)

Italy's long-expected "big push" in the 11-day-old war with Greece was reported under way today as the Italian high command said Fascist divisions had advanced beyond the Kalamas river on the northwest battlefront.

Dispatches from the northeast front said the siege of Koritza, key Italian supply base 10 miles inside Albania, where 30,000 Fascist troops have been reported "trapped," appeared to be reaching a critical phase.

(Unconfirmed frontier advices reaching Salonika yesterday said Greek mountain fighters, swarming down from heights around the city, had entered Koritza and captured thousands of Italian prisoners.

(Military experts discounted the reports, however, pointing out that the Greeks would be in a more favorable position by clinging to the mountains—beyond reach of Italian mechanized forces.)

Both sides were reported rushing reinforcements to the Koritza sector, with the Greeks still holding the heights above the Albanian town of Bigliste, east of Koritza, despite strong Italian counter-attacks.

A decisive battle, it was said, appeared imminent.

Greek and British warplanes bombed Koritza and Argirocastro, another Albanian town, while Italian bombers smashed at the Greek town of Phlorina with reported heavy casualties ensuing.

A laconic communique by Premier Mussolini's high command disclosed the start of the "big push."

Belgrade dispatches said that Italian troops had made "small advances" along the Greek west coast, and that their columns were bombed by Greek planes.

Award Contracts For Elevator In County Building

Contracts totaling $14,844 for the installation of an elevator in the Richland county courthouse had been awarded today to Mansfield firms by the county commissioners.

Contract for the elevator mechanism went to the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company for $8,482. Its bid was the lowest of four submitted.

P. J. Zeiher, Mansfield contractor, received the contract for installing the elevator, including necessary remodeling of the interior of the building. His bid was $5,811, lower of two submitted.

Contract for electrical work went to the Richland Electric company for $551. It was the only bid received on the work.

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board, said options might be exercised to raise the cost of the work slightly above the base bids. The cost was estimated at $15,000.

Mitchell said the elevator shaft would go up through the northwest corner of the probate and common pleas courtrooms. Work is expected to begin within a few days.

MOTHER JAILED

SANDUSKY—(AP)— Mrs. Clara Lucille O'Brien, 23, of Springfield, Mass., was in the county jail today, on a charge of abandoning her twin sons on the steps of a church rectory here three days ago.

Voters Pass 4 of 7 Bond, Levy Issues

Madison Officials Hint $290,000 Proposal May Be Submitted Again.

Four of seven bond issues and tax levies submitted to Richland county voters in Tuesday's election were approved, while the others failed to get the necessary 65 per cent majority, a survey of county returns showed today.

In Madison township, where a $290,000 bond issue for a school building program was defeated by a small margin, school officials indicated they may seek a special election for the bond proposal.

Jefferson township and Bellville approved a $4,000 bond issue for new fire equipment, while a three-mill school levy was continued in Shelby, a two-mill operating levy passed in the village of Butler, and Plymouth voters approved a one-mill levy to maintain the village cemetery.

Mansfield turned down a proposed one-mill levy for additional policemen and firemen and Sharon township voters rejected a two-mill school levy.

A shift of 66 votes would have given the Madison bond issue the necessary margin. Olan LaRue, superintendent of the township schools, said pupils in the district are "so crowded that we are going to have to do something about new buildings soon."

The vote was 1,322 for the bond issue and 814 against it. Vote totals in the township districts were: Lincoln Heights, 606 for and 201 against, Reformatory district, 64 for and 52 against; South Boulevards, 75 for and 126 against; Precinct B, 401 for and 253 against; Precinct D, 36 for and 33 against; Precinct E 10 for and 29 against; Center Hall district, 139 for and 120 against.

Gets Biggest Vote.

The Butler village levy received the biggest favorable vote. It passed by a vote of 320 to 66. The Jefferson township bond issue also received a huge margin, winning 750 to 273.

South Boulevards voted down the sale of liquor and beer within the village corporation limits. The vote on five issues pertaining to the sale of beer and intoxicants was:

Shall sale of any intoxicating liquor be permitted, yes 95, no, 112; sale of wine by package for consumption off the premises where sold, yes, 88, no, 107; sale of spirituous liquors by the glass, yes, 88, no, 111; sale of wine for consumption on or off the premises, yes, 87 no, 109; shall a state

SAY SHIP SUNK

Italians Report British Liner Lost, But Don't Say How.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Sinking of the British Cunard liner Carpathia has been announced by the official Rome radio, the National Broadcasting Company said today.

No further details were given, according to NBC's short wave listening station.

Although Lloyd's register does not list a Cunard liner named Carpathia, it was recalled that the original Carpathia was sunk during the World war after gaining renown for aiding in the rescue of the survivors of the luxury liner Titanic in 1912. So far as is known, no ship by the name Carpathia is in service today.

HITS ADMIRALTY

Parliament Hears Conduct of Naval Warfare Attacked.

LONDON — (AP) — Commander Robert Tatton Bower, World war veteran and member of parliament, told the house of commons today there is "definite disquiet about the board of admiralty as a whole" in its conduct of Britain's naval affairs.

THREATEN ROME

Retaliation for Bombing of London Indicated.

LONDON —(AP)— R. A. Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, told the house of commons today that Britain must "reserve full liberty of action in regard to Rome" since Italian fliers had bombed London.

Crowds Cheer FDR---Willkie Reads About It

Defeated in his bid for the presidency of the United States, Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican candidate, reads all about it in a New York newspaper. Willkie, conceding the election, congratulated President Roosevelt, the victor, and urged his followers to join him in backing the defense program.

FEDERAL BOND TAXES URGED

Morgenthau Says Elimination of Exemptions Proposed By Treasury.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., said today that the treasury will recommend to congress that tax exemption on all government securities be eliminated immediately.

Morgenthau suggested this step as one means of helping defray the mounting costs of rearmament. Defense, he said, will require other extraordinary financial arrangements and he said that he proposed to ask congress to extend the debt limitation by $15,000,000,000 or $20,000,000,000.

He estimated that total government debt might be $65,000,000,000 by June 30, 1942.

The secretary declined to estimate government expenditures during the next four years but replied:

"We have only just begun to re-arm."

Assures Mansfield Industry of Part In Defense Program

Mansfield industry was assured today of participation in the nation's broadly co-ordinated defense effort through revitalizing program planned by the National Defense commission.

This assertion was made by L. W. Casaday, field representative for the national defense board, upon the completion of a week's survey of the city's industrial capacities.

Casaday was sent here last week by the commission to make a study of available facilities and personnel for national defense orders, the purpose of the survey being the first step in the commission's plan to utilize the nation's stagnate productive capacities.

The representative reported today that his brief survey of the city disclosed that Mansfield possesses but few "depressed industries." He did not name them.

"Mansfield by no means falls into the class of a ghost city," he commented. "Industries here are comparatively well diversified, with the result that the social and community effects of depressed conditions in some industries

CREMATION

Dead Dogs and Cats Clog Town Hall Chimney.

FAIRMONT, Minn —(AP)—When election officials started a fire in the stove at Galena town hall they found it wouldn't draw because the chimney was plugged. Before they got through, helpers who cleaned out the flue extracted a dog and four cats, all dead.

Officials remarked that it was only a few days since Halloween.

ICKES RESIGNS

Says He 'Followed Custom' To Give FDR 'Free Hand.'

WASHINGTON— (UP) —Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes said today that, following custom, he has tendered his resignation to President Roosevelt to allow the chief executive a free hand in appointing a new cabinet.

"My resignation is at the White House," Ickes said at a press conference. "This is customary and I did it four years ago.

"I believe the president should be left a free hand at a time like this to reshuffle or recreate his cabinet. He has a mighty task before him. My resignation was made in good faith."

THIEVERY WAVE CONTINUES HERE

A wave of vandalism and petty thievery which resulted in smashing windows at the new Johnny Appleseed junior high school and the theft of house markers from the Woodland district continued today as three thefts were reported to police.

Officers this morning were called to the public library to investigate the looting of the building last night.

Lois McKellar, librarian, reported that only a small amount of money had been taken from a drawer in the office desk. She said the desks were ransacked but nothing else was missing.

Police said entrance was gained by breaking a basement window. The burglary was disclosed after Edward Kovich, custodian, found the window open when he arrived at 6 a. m.

Meanwhile, J. F. Orr, proprietor of the J. F. Orr Typewriter company, 136 Park avenue west, reported the loss of a $59 typewriter.

Orr told Police Chief Meade K. Bates that an unidentified man came to his establishment last Saturday and asked to take the machine home on approval. He said he failed to come back.

Clayton Berger, 173 Wood street, told police that a blanket and pair of gloves was taken from his car last night. He said the theft took place while the machine was parked on North Franklin avenue just north of Park avenue east.

START OFFICIAL COUNT OF VOTE CAST IN RACES

Election Officials Hope To Complete Job Saturday For Final Board Action.

JUDGE SHERICK WINNER

Ashland Jurist Returned To Appeals Court Bench For Fifth District.

Richland county was getting back to normal today after the presidential, state and county election Tuesday which brought out an all-time high vote of 36,180.

Workers at the county election board had started an official count of the vote cast for all offices and in special issues elections, while the board prepared to receive campaign expense reports from candidates.

A. F. Porter, clerk of the election board, said the official count probably will be completed by Saturday afternoon so the board can consider the figures at a meeting.

The county vote Tuesday showed a record split vote as well as a new high total vote. Hundreds of voters cast aside party affiliations to give Gov. John W. Bricker, Republican, a majority of more than 2,500 in the county, while Frank E. Robinson, Democratic candidate for sheriff on the same ballot, won by nearly 8,000.

While most of his Republican running mates were losing by margins ranging from 2,000 to 8,000, John L. Catlett, Republican, won the state representative post by 600 votes. President Roosevelt won the county by 993 votes over Republican Wendell Willkie.

"The returns show that Republican voters are more independent when they go to the polls to elect county and state officials," Ralph Hardy, county G. O. P. executive chairman, reflected. "Hundreds of Republicans who voted for Gov. Bricker and Wendell Willkie apparently crossed over and supported some of the Democratic county candidates," he said.

Complete returns today from the 15 counties in the Fifth district re-elected Judge C. C. Sherick to the district appeals court by a big majority.

Judge Sherick, who lives in Ashland and has been a member of the court for a number of years, won in Richland county by a vote of 12,594 to 7,095 and 6,056 for his two opponents on the non-partisan ballot.

Board officials said today they expect no great changes in county returns as a result of the official count.

LOWEST DROP

Temperature Down to 22 For New Low Mark This Fall.

A heavy frost and the first worst freeze of the season placed heavy hands last night on the few flowers that remained in outdoor gardens, and a temperature drop to 22—lowest since the advent of fall—was a warning that winter may be "just around the corner."

There is little change in temperature predicted for tonight and tomorrow, with fair skies for the next 24 hours.

Last night's "cold spell" brought out heavy clothing today. Fur coats were none too heavy as a stiff wind came out of the north. In spite of a bright sun yesterday the mercury never rose over 45 and the average for the 24 hour period was nine below the average for that date. At noon today it was still hovering around the 30 mark on thermometers.

KEEPS RECORD

McSweeney Carries Own County In Senate Race.

WOOSTER —(INS)— Although he lost the election, John McSweeney, Democratic nominee for the U. S senate, today kept intact his record of never being defeated in his home county.

McSweeney carried Wayne county by 634 votes, nosing out Senator-elect Harold H. Burton, Republican, of Cleveland, 11,610 to 10,976.

Ovation Given President by Huge Throngs

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt, elected to a precedent-shattering third term, was given a wild ovation by a great multitude of more than 300,000 people today as he returned to Washington to lead the drive for national unity in a wartorn world.

Mr. Roosevelt arrived by train in the capital from Hyde Park, N. Y., at 8:25 a. m.

The nation's first third term president, who has already pledged himself to erase election scars and promote national unity, was cheered to the echo by the crowds.

The vast throng overflowed the broad plaza of Union station to line—four and five deep—historic Constitution and Pennsylvania avenues, the president's route from the station to the White House.

After waiting in the private car of his special train for a few minutes to greet his wife and other government officials, President Roosevelt, accompanied by Vice-President Elect Wallace, went to the Union station plaza to make a short speech. He said:

"My old friends of Washington:

"I think this means a great deal to both Mr. and Mrs. Wallace and to my wife and myself. It isn't as though we were new people. Your coming out after all these years means we get on pretty well.

"I want to tell you how very happy we both are to be back here for just a little longer.

"As you know we like farm life, but of all cities, if we had to live in a city, we would rather that it be in Washington. I want to tell you how glad we are at the results of two days ago and how happy we are at the prospect of staying here just a little longer."

After the speech, President Roosevelt, followed by a long cavalcade of motor cars, was driven to the White House through the adulating throngs. He waved his hat again and again in response to their cheers.

Police, national guardsmen and firemen, more than 3,000 strong, had roped off the plaza and the station to keep back the crowds.

On the plaza, a space was cleared for the president to make a speech to those who had turned out to greet him. Microphones of the three major broadcasting chains were set up long in advance to carry the president's words to the nation. They were stationed so that the president faced the majestic capitol building as he spoke.

The president's weather luck held good. It was a beautiful autumn day—clear, crisp and sunny.

Washington's 90,000 school children were given a holiday for the occasion, and the capital's 140,000 government workers also were granted leave to greet their "chief."

Among the dignitaries who welcomed the president back "home" to the White House were Secretary Hull, Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, Attorney General Bob Jackson, Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau, Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of Agriculture Wickard.

Also present was former Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, the new vice-president of the land, and Mrs. Wallace. It was something of an occasion for the Wallaces. Before the president's train arrived, hundreds crowded around him to offer congratulations on his election.

Mrs. Roosevelt, in a red ensemble, also was waiting at the station to greet her husband. She returned to Washington earlier.

Banked at the station and along the line of march were many army, navy, marine corps and national guard bands. Their theme song seemed to be "Hail To The Chief."

It was the greatest turnout of people since the June day in 1939 when nearly 500,000 poured out from their homes to watch the arrival of King George and Queen Elizabeth of England.

Mr. Roosevelt waved galy to the crowd in the train station, and talked and joked with photographers, reporters and radio announcers. Mr. Roosevelt looked at one

STRENGTHENED: New Deal Gains 10 Votes In Congress

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—New Deal control of congress was strengthened today by a net Democratic gain in house seats which widened its working majority over the Republican-southern conservative coalition of the present session.

In the senate, Republicans will register a net gain of three or four seats, it was indicated by nearly complete returns, but the Democratic majority remains ample.

Analysis of the senatorial and gubernatorial contests showed that while the Republicans were taking a beating on the national ticket and in the house, they were electing governors in an almost solid block of states in the midwest, stretching from Ohio to Colorado.

Thus Tuesday's elections appeared to forecast two major political developments during the next two years:

1. Closer co-operation by congress in President Roosevelt's policies.

2. Assumption by midwest leaders of greater control over Republican party policy.

Political observers believed the new congress would be more responsive to President Roosevelt's policies for two reasons. Not only did they expect Mr. Roosevelt's re-election to enhance his prestige, but the Democratic house majority apparently will be increased from the present 92-vote margin to 106.

With only four house contests still undecided, the Democrats

SOVIET RUSSIA BUSY PATCHING UP HOME FENCE

Aim to Make USSR Ready For Any Emergency as War Scenes Change.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—Soviet Russia, which drove its outposts into six neighboring nations in less than a year, has turned to patching its fences at home.

The energy of this people, now numbering nearly 200,000,000 and covering one-sixth of the earth, has been concentrated by their leader, Joseph Stalin, on reform of the army, reorganization of the administration, speed-up of labor, and collection of crops.

The goal appears to be to put Russia in a position to meet any emergency during the decisive phases of the European war.

Stalin's words—"We must keep our entire people in a state of mobilized preparedness in the face of danger of military attack"—are echoed repeatedly by the Soviet press and speakers.

Russia's territorial expansion, in the first year of the war, was attributed to need for strenthening of her defenses.

September, 1939, the Red army occupied eastern Poland

July, 1940, Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia became Soviet republics.

Thus, the Soviet Union's population was increased by more than 23,000,000, bringing it up to 193,000,000.

Even more important, strategically, the Soviet frontiers were moved to a new line from the Danube river in the south to the Baltic sea in the north.

Russia's territorial growth came to a halt, at least temporarily, in August, 1940, when Germany and Italy gave their guarantees of integrity to the remainder of Rumania.

Diplomatic sources said Germany notified Russia of the new Balkan set-up, in the normal course of diplomacy.

There was said to have been no formal or demonstrative demarche, however, and Italy did not participate in this phase.

Russia accepted the situation. The Russian-Rumanian border, which had been agitated by frequent clashes, grew quiet, and the Soviet press reported the new Rumanian government exiled King Carol because of his "provocative policy" toward Russia

These dispatches amounted to a declaration that Russia had no further aims on Rumania, and implied approval of the new regime.

Some evidences of Soviet pressure on Finland still linger. Premier Viacheslav Molotoff warned, in his foreign policy report to the August supreme Soviet session, that relations with Finland "may be damaged." The press reported "oppression" of the society for friendship and peace with the USSR. in Finland.

The strengthening of the home front has not been labeled as directed against any single power, although Germany, Russia's friend of only one year's standing, has grown with the war and established a long common frontier with Russia.

The new defensive commissar, Marshal Timoshenko, who succeeded Marshal Voroshiloff, undertook a complete reorganization, putting the "people's fighters" back on a basis resembling that of regular armies in other countries

He created officers' ranks, introduced the salute, and strict discipline, eliminated political commissars and restored decorations running up to the gaudy marshal's star. Gen K. A. Meretzkoff became chief of the general staff.

Even so, summer distinct maneuvers showed all was not well. Marshal Timoshenko's own analysis complained of lack of training, impulsive advances without thorough scouting, too-stubborn defenses without flexibility, and general lack of organization.

Labor has been speeded up everywhere following the June 26 decree, warning that "the war danger for our country has grown," and putting the work on a six-day, 48-hour basis, instead of the previous five days and 35 hours.

Long prison terms and heavy fines are imposed on workers who are late, absent, or quit their jobs.

The grain harvest, on which much of the nation's strength depends, turned out to be of average success. After a late spring, crops were collected from an area slightly greater than last year's normal growth, and the nation's breadbasket is full.

NO BEAR RIVER

Colorado Town Taken Off Map at Public Auction.

BEAR RIVER, Colo.—(INS)—Don't believe the dateline on this story. There is no longer such a town in Colorado as Bear River.

J. E. Luttrell, who bought the place at public auction for $2,000, moved it away piecemeal to other towns in the state. The buildings consisted of 40 houses, a 23-room, three-story hotel, a two-story combined pool room and dance hall, a 12-room bunkhouse and a general store and postoffice.

Luttrell razed the larger buildings for their material, and moved most of the houses to nearby mining towns.

Once a thriving coal mining town, Bear River declined from its peak population in 1919, when Routt County mines were going full blast, to its present state of non-existence.

The Bear River mine was worked only a few days last winter, and will not be worked at all this year. The few remaining miners' families moved to other Routt county communities.

FOR Children's SNIFFLES

SPARE your child much of the misery of sniffling, sneezing, and smothers' nostrils due to colds by inserting Mentholatum in his nostrils.

This gentle ointment soothes and protects irritated mucous membrane, reduces swelling, and thus opens breathing passages wider. It soon checks sneezing and sniffling

Also rub Mentholatum on the child's chest, back, and neck. This will improve local blood circulation and help relieve cold discomforts more effectively.

Mentholatum helps in so many ways that you should always remember this. For Discomfort of Colds—Mentholatum Links them together in your mind

BARS DOWN

Every Year Leap Year for Women In Burma.

DENTON, Tex.—(INS)—In Burma, marriage is a civil matter that can take place on the spur of the moment and be dissolved in less than a day—but the women pick their men and then know how to hold them, Dr. DeWitt Baldwin former Methodist missionary to the Asian country, told a North Texas Teachers College Assembly.

A couple has only to go before the fuji (head man) of the village and tell him they wish to be man and wife. Unless there are questions to be brought before the elders of the village, the couple make their agreement public by dipping their heads together in one big bowl of rice.

A feast for the people of the village follows, which often keeps young married couples indebted for years.

A woman has equal opportunities with man, and in case of divorce (granted by the high priest upon sufficient complaint) is given half of all their property.

Aunt Ida's Baking Ideas —

THERE'S NO LAW that says layer cakes have to have three layers! If three are good then aren't four just a little bit better? Make a four-layer cake next time and watch the family sit up and take notice (not to mention a second helping!) No matter how many layers your cake has you're sure to be proud of it if you bake it with Rumford Baking Powder. You see, Rumford contains no alum, it can't leave a bitter taste — no matter how much you use. And you can use Rumford in any recipe in the amount the directions call for. Buy Rumford today. CALIFORNIA HAS SUPPLY OF CORK

Possibility of Commercial Production Studied By Forestry Expert.

BERKELEY, Cal.—(INS)—With overseas sources blocked or endangered, the possibility of commercial cork production in California is being studied, Woodbridge Metcalf, University of California forestry specialist, reported.

The bulk of the United States' supply now comes from Spain and Portugal, but the war has made it increasingly hard to procure transportation.

Metcalf stated that at least one large American concern is actively engaged in finding a more dependable source, and is inquiring into possibility of developing a cork industry in California, where cork trees have been used for many years as shade trees but not as a commercial product.

Tests have been made by the University of California upon these trees, indicating that commercial production would be feasible.

However, it was pointed out that it could not become a "get rich quick" avenue, inasmuch as it requires 15 to 20 years to bring a tree into production, though after that it may be stripped every 10 or 15 years for the next century.

BROTHERS HANDY

LIVINGSTON, Ala.—(U P)—Livingston State Teachers college has six brothers and sisters in attendance this year. The girls say the brothers are "handy, when there are floors to be mopped or curtains to be hung or we want to see a movie and can't get a date."

Labor Shortage Brings End To Bermuda's WPA

Started a year ago during a slight slack in employment, the Bermuda Labor Corps has been disbanded by an Act of Parliament. Increased shipping has given work to the former reliefers.

The late Labor Corps was Bermuda's only "new-fangled" social experiment. These horse-and-buggy islands have resisted all government innovations, including income tax, inheritance tax, and excess profits tax.

In contrast to the more modern countries, Bermuda has no national debt It has prospered throughout the depression because thousands of Americans who could no longer travel to the fashionable European resorts have come to relax on these balmy, taxless shores.

ISSUE CARRIES

CRESTLINE — Crestline sewer bond issue which was voted on Tuesday carried three to one. There were 1673 votes for the issue and 547 against.

The issue was for $80,000 worth of bonds for the purpose of construction of interceptor sewers and a sewage disposal plant for the city.

WOMAN'S CLUB

CRESTLINE — "Lands to the South," will be the subject of Mrs. C. E. Dewald when she appears before fellow members of the Crestline Woman's club as guest speaker next Monday evening at the Y M C. A.

ASKS FOR BIDS

AAA Seeks Proposals For Lime For Use on Farms.

Richland county farmers can obtain lime for their soil through the federal AAA program again in 1941, George A. Mentzer, member of the county AAA committee, said today.

Limestone dealers in the Mansfield area have been asked to submit bids to the county AAA committee from Nov. 9 to 18. Dealers who win the contracts will be reimbursed by the federal government for the lime they sell farmers.

Farmers participating in the AAA program can buy lime up to 70 per cent of the amount of their federal soil conservation payments. Cost of the lime will be deducted from the checks which will be mailed to farmers during the year.

STOCK PRICES STEADY TODAY AT OPENING

Issues Hold Own In Market; Boardrooms Interested In Engineering Report.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK —(AP)— Stocks moved upward sharply today in a fast recovery from their post-election lows, some leaders advancing around five points. Wall Street analysts laid the burst of activity to Secretary Morgenthau's request for an increase in the national debt limit, saying buyers evidently held such action to have inflationary implications.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stock prices were steady at the opening of the market today.

Of interest to boardrooms was the Engineering News-Record report that October engineering construction awards totaled $702,842,000, the highest volume in history, while last week awards increased for the tenth consecutive period.

Another rising industrial index was the Associated Press electric power chart which, despite seasonal adjustment, rose to a new year's high of 133.9 from 132 the previous week.

Britain Builds Up Her Navy

A corner of the Royal Navy stands ready for launching behind this lad who had a hand in it's construction somewhere in England. Britain is steadily building up her navy and claims it's bigger now than at the start of the war despite losses to Germany.

WAR EFFECT

Change In Furniture Styles Predict In U. S.

LOS ANGELES—The European war, it is predicted, cannot fail to have a definite effect upon our fashions in furniture as well as dress. It will likely necessitate our concentration upon our own resources instead of the style centers of Europe.

Research into regional lore is already evolving contemporary versions in furniture: the Deep South offers dignified Regency; the West Coast, California mission; the East, charmingly provincial Pennsylvania Dutch.

Furniture has been called "an index to racial traits, as certain of identification as finger prints." Accordingly, the early Pennsylvania farmers, immigrant from the Rhenish Palatinate and adjacent provinces, left an indelible impression upon the handicrafts and homewares of their new land. Economical in construction, solid and practical, the furniture was characteristic of the people using it.

Triplets Named for Willkie

Mrs. Carl Cuttita of New York proudly presents her newborn triplets, named Wendy, Louise and Willkie, in honor of Wendell Willkie, defeated Republican presidential candidate. The father was active in the campaign in Wilkie's behalf.

TOE METHOD

Negroes Have New Way To Get Partners at Parties.

MERIDIAN, Miss.—(AP)—They have a new way of choosing partners at parties given by members of Mt. Calvary Baptist negro church. It's called "toe touching."

A sheet is hung in the middle of the room. Men line up on one side, women on the other. Everybody puts a foot under the sheet. When a man and woman touch toes they are paired off for the evening.

Unlike lunch-box auctions, in which men knew how their best gals tied their boxes, "toe touching" offers little chance for identification. But a man's shins may get banged up in the rush for a dainty foot.

BEAU BRUMMEL

Thief Makes Careful Selection of Clothing on Raid.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—(AP)—A thief with a taste for fine raiment broke into the Phi Beta Delta fraternity house near the University of Illinois and carefully selected the following:

Eight suits (double and single breasted and full dress), six sports coats, nine pairs of slacks, ten sports shirts, 14 pairs of shoes, 36 pairs of socks, 36 shirts, eight pairs of pajamas, six electric razors, a set of golf clubs and some tennis equipment.

To provide for immediate necessities, he also took $23 in a sharkskin wallet.

CHEESE SOUP TOPPER

If you own some of those earthenware soup servers, try this cheese topper the next time you serve soup. Fill the soup dishes and then sprinkle generously with cheese. Run under the broiler to brown the cheese.

CHICAGO CLOVER SEED

SERMON TOPIC

Rabbi Jacobs To Talk On 'Armistice Day' Friday.

Rabbi Myron W. Jacobs will speak on "Armistice Day" at the Temple Emanuel at 8 p. m. Friday during the regular weekly services.

The first meeting of a newly-formed study group will be held Monday at Temple Emanuel at 8 p. m., with "Jewish Participation in American History" being the topic under discussion. Rabbi Jacobs will preside at the meeting.

PAM— Friday, at 10 A. M.! By A. W. Brewerton

A WIRE FROM Z-29: "SHIPPED TO FLORIDA TODAY" - SWELL!! - THE G-MEN HAVEN'T BEEN TIPPED OFF THIS TIME - THEY'VE GOT TROUBLES - IN FLORIDA! HA, HA!
HELLO - Z-43? - OKAY! - - EVERYTHING'S CLEAR - THE JOB GOES THROUGH ON SCHEDULE! - PASS THE WORD - TOMORROW - AT TEN O'CLOCK - GOOD!!
FRIDAY, AT 10 A.M., WILL THE WORLD BE SHOCKED BY A TERRIBLE, CRASHING DISASTER?
BOOM
AND PAM INDIRECTLY WAS THE CAUSE OF THE CRIMINALS' NOT BEING CAPTURED THAT TIME BEFORE.
WONDER HOW SOON I'LL HEAR FROM DAVID - AND WHAT ALL THAT TROUBLE WAS IN FLORIDA?
WHAT CAN STOP THE HOLOCAUST, NOW? - THE G-MEN HAVE ALL BEEN CALLED TO ANOTHER "TROUBLE SPOT"!

Medical Mystery Film.

"Dr. Kildare Goes Home" moves the scientific thrills and funmakers of the Dr. Kildare series from the big city hospital to a country town in the latest of the Max Brand medical mystery pictures, now showing at the Ohio. Lew Ayres and Lionel Barrymore start a clinic with the aid of John Shelton and others. Laraine Day plays the role of nurse, Mary Lamont, sweetheart of Lew.

* * *

Barrymore Ad Libs.

High powered comedy with John Barrymore starred as the leading mirth-maker, is crammed in "The Great Profile" which is playing at the Madison. It relates the hilarious experiences of a famous actor who ad libs his way to national prominence. Blond Mary Beth Hughes has an opportunity to display her talents as a comedienne, along with John Payne. Co-feature is "Cherokee Strip," with Richard Dix in the lead.

* * *

Gambling on Seas.

"Westbound Stage" is the title of one of the exciting features coming Friday to the Ritz. Co-feature is another of adventure with Wayne Morris in "Gambling on the High Seas." The latter is based on exciting skirmishes between government officials and ruthless gambling ship operators. Morris is cast in the role of a two-fisted newspaperman.

Jean Hersholt In Lead.

The real-life romance between a city boy and a small town girl comes into its own as a climactic highlight of "Dr. Christian Meets the Women" in which Jean Hersholt is starred. Frank Albertson and Marilyn Merrick have the romantic interest. Dr. Christian has to cope with a "quack" who practically kills the women of the town by reducing methods. Co-feature is "Santa Fe Stampede," in which John Wayne, Ray Corrigan and Max Terhune are cast as the three mesquiteers.

'Resignation Accepted' Sign on Lewis Door

Jokesters, taking John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers' president, at his word that he would resign as head of the C. I. O. if President Roosevelt was re-elected, placed this "Resignation Accepted" sign before the entrance to the United Mine Workers' office in Washington, D. C.

NEW RANGE

There is a new gas range with super-thrift oven which should interest every woman who wants to keep her cooking costs down, obtain better baking results, and heighten her kitchen comfort. An extra-thick layer of insulating material throughout top, back and sides, and door of the oven keeps this range cool outside. The makers claim it heats twice as fast as old-type ovens, and is exceptionally easy on gas.

78,400 Enrolled In Conservation Corps Last Year

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The Civilian Conservation corps put 78,400 men to work on soil conservation programs in 40 states during the last fiscal year, J. J. McEntee, director, reported.

More than one-fourth of the 1,500 camps in the country were engaged in the soil work that covered an area of 12,000,000 acres.

Approximately 100,000,000 trees and shrubs were planted, 410,000 check dams built and 24,941 miles of contour ridges erected to prevent wind and water erosion of topsoil.

The CCC director said engineering and construction experience given the enrollees in making 248 impounding and diversion dams, building 90 foot and horse bridges, 65 vehicle bridges and 726 miles of road was the type needed in the national defense program.

"Besides the defense training value, this instruction and experience helps prepare the enrollees for jobs in private industry after they leave the camp," he said.

FISH INDUSTRY RECORDS BOOM

War In Europe and Asia Aids American Fishermen, Official Says.

BOSTON—(INS)—War in Europe and Asia have greatly stimulated the fishing industry, according to Edward H. Cooley, manager of the Massachusetts Fisheries Association.

Belligerent powers recognize that from the sea come valuable fish oils from which margerine, substitute for butter, can be made, saving money which can be used to purchase guns and other war materials. Again, oils are essential in manufacture of glycerine, vital element in explosives.

Spain and Portugal, hard-pressed neutrals, are expanding their fishing fleets. France has fishing fleets directed to the best catching grounds by wireless.

In Germany, "ersatz" sausages are made from fish, "fish wool" is developed from cod, and fish skin slippers, leggings and gloves are being made.

Japan operates one-third of all the fishing craft in the world and half the 3,000,000 persons employed in fisheries are Japanese. The Japs stripped their own waters of fish many years ago and since being driven from the Alaskan and Canadian rivers, now operate off South and Central America, taking their floating canneries with them.

The Japanese and Germans are newcomers to the whaling industry, but now claim a fifth of the world's catch.

California May Soon Have Home Guard Ski Troops

SAN FRANCISCO—(INS)—A brigade of home guard ski troops, modelled after France's once-famous "Blue Devils."—Alpine Chasseurs—soon may be ready to defend the five passes through California's towering backbone, the Sierra Nevada mountain range.

Residents of the Lake Tahoe region, cradled in massive peaks on the California-Nevada borderline, are actively engaged in formation of a ski unit for this purpose.

Terrain in the vicinity of Lake Donner has been selected as a training site, and men with both army training and long experience in skiing on the Sierra Nevada slopes are being recruited.

While projected to serve as a second line of defense in event of invasion, the ski troops also plan to serve a peacetime purpose, by aiding the forest service year-round in combatting forest fires and policing the forests.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those smarting, burning, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters do not work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons can start backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. You feel out of sorts and miserable when kidneys are disturbed and sometimes burning, scanty passages with smarting and itching tell you something is wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Never Let Colds Hang On! —But Don't Experiment

CHAPTER XXXII

Jocelyn lunched with a charmingly suave woman who had been to Paris some fifteen years earlier, and who while there had arranged hilariously to exchange her husband for that of her closest woman friend, the friend delightedly marrying the discarded husband at the same ceremony. She went to a wedding which was attended by the bride's father as well as her three stepfathers. She heard an imperious old woman at a tea demanding of her son the identity of the old man who had been following her about, and heard his laughing answer, "That's my father, Mother." And she heard an alarmed mother on the telephone trying to find a daughter's whereabouts on the morning of the day set for her debut.

"She's not with you, Miss Britton? I thought she might have gone home with Mrs. Fordyce. Great heavens, if she doesn't come in soon I don't see how she can come out this afternoon!"

But in the crazy quilt that was this social pattern there were a few homes that Jocelyn loved: the Carters', the Frenches' at Woodside, the Pells'. These managed somehow to live simply and honestly and happily in the midst of insanity and confusion, and she liked to think that they were her friends; they had elected her long before they could dream she would one day be one of them.

The weeks went by, and May was gone, and June came in on a blaze of flowers that buried the old house in beauty. She and Philip had decided to give the world but one week's notice of their plans. His mother would be the only guest from his side of the house; the ceremony would take place very simply in Aunt Nell's parlor late in the afternoon, with the girl cousins composing the party, and the old doctor to give the bride away. Phil's car would be waiting; they would linger only long enough to be kissed and congratulated, and then go off for their long trip.

"And where do we dine that night, Phil?" Jocelyn asked as they discussed their wedding day plans.

"Leave that to me. I've worked it all out," Philip said smiling.

"And who drives us? Louis or the little boy?"

"Nobody drives me. Your husband drives you!"

"It sounds so delicious! To be going up into the wonderful Canadian woods, and to be able to loiter along just as we please, stopping whenever we want to. Are most people ever so happy as this?"

"I don't think so."

"And Norma is having a wonderful time," Jocelyn mused in satisfaction. "If your letter hadn't said so, mine would have been enough. It really sounds as if her mother were taking care of her. And, of course, there's always Sandy."

"Even Sandy appears to be somewhat tamed."

"I imagine Sandy got a scare. I wonder what Sandy'll think," Jocelyn murmured, in an amused voice, "when she comes back to find me at Hill Acres, to stay?"

* * *

It was 9 o'clock at night, they were out on the terrace. Philip's mother had gone out to dinner, he and Jocelyn had had theirs together, and had wandered out here afterward to look at the stars and the strengthening moonlight, and to talk of the announcement that was to be made on the following day, and of all that would follow it.

"She gets out then, and she stays out," Philip said, of Sandy.

"Phil," Jocelyn said, after a time when complete content had kept them silent, "I don't like this atmosphere very much. Where could we go someday—I don't mean this year or any special year, but sometime? A place we could live. If we had children, if we had a garden and apples and cows, and a creek for them to fall into, and barns to hammer in and trees to climb. I like—seasons, Phil. I like to feel that winter's colder than summer, and that in the spring places get green. And here—here it's flowers and asparagus and card games and clothes all the year round. I'd love some white rambling shabby place with a hill on it, and a lot of old sheds for children to explore, and a windmill. I'd like to fuss with curtains, and put a door through, and perhaps just have a nice colored couple, to start with, who'd talk to us while they were putting the food on the table. That isn't your way, Phil, I know that! But even after a few weeks of living here I get so dry inside."

"What makes you think that isn't my way?"

"Well—I think of New York clubs and first nights as your way, an da valet and the biggest suite and the slickest black car and the craziest tips to the waiter—and champagne—"

"Jocelyn," he said, as she paused, "there isn't a man alive who wouldn't like to live the way you're describing, if he could afford it. There isn't a man alive who wouldn't like the branch of a river, and trees, and salmon hopping, and children and dogs streaming out to meet him. A couple of fishing rigs and my 38 and a mountain to climb—nothing but dirty old cords and pull-over sweaters; a new kid to spoil every two or three years—it sounds like heaven!"

"Oh, but then, Phil," she twisted about to show him shining eyes in the moonlight, "would you? Could we? I mean, Someday—"

"Honey, all next autumn after we get back we'll take week ends off and cruise around in the lake country. And when we get the place it's going to be big. A couple of thousand acres for about that many dollars; that's what you can get if you go to the northern part of the state. We'll get a place with a lake on it. Lake Jocelyn."

"Philip, we couldn't!"

"Well, I say we could, and I'm master in my own house, and I'll thank you to remember it. Jocelyn, this world would be full of families living like that, enjoying every minute, hauling wood in, looking up to see if it's going to snow, fishing for trout, if it wasn't for the women! Women have got to have clubs and movies and dressmakers and all the rest of it."

"Not all women!" Jocelyn was silent for a moment; her hands tight in his, his cheek resting against her temple. "I'm going to be an awfully good wife to you, Phil," she said presently. "I know all brides say that. But I mean that in spite of all the catty things I say about all this crowd, they've had the effect on me of making me want to be better. Can you understand that? They've made me feel that I don't want to drink cocktails before lunch, or lounge around smoking and gossiping and telling dirty stories, like Nita, or swearing like Olive. Olive says things when she's playing bridge that make even the men wince."

"You're telling me?" Philip murmured with a laugh.

"But even myself—the person I was a year ago, I despise her!" Jocelyn said confusedly, but with feeling. "It seemed to me then—I knew better, of course, for Mother was always lecturing me about girls in the offices. But it seemed to me not so terrible—nothing so much out of the way—to fall in love with a married man. I was quite complacently considering a woman's divorcing her husband so that he could marry me. You know, when you're in an office building where you see a man every day, you do somehow get to think that he's a superman. He's different and you're different from everyone else. You have so much in common. Every few minutes you can steal to be together seem so precious, and then, when it's over," she concluded, with a rueful little laugh, "and whe he suddenly comes down with a bump to the level of the other men, you do feel such a fool!"

"And then suppose you're married to him?"

"But those affairs don't end in marriage, Phil. They end with the man getting tired nine times out of ten. I've seen other girls go through it and cry in their lunch hours, but I never thought I would. I wish it weren't on my record. I wish I could wipe it all out."

"You haven't very much to want wiped out, my dear."

"I like that. And I have the worry of his being around—he's working in San Francisco again, and wanting a divorce and not able to get it, and wanting me and not able to get me, and wanting to succeed in his work and getting nowhere. And it all seems such a pity!"

"You've seen him again, then?"

"No. But I met Covington Kegel, the man who has the little studio over in Piedmont, and he told me he was worried about Kent. And I feel so helpless about it, Phil. One can't help one's feelings changing! When it's all over it's so labored—so heavy to try to revive it. Not that I tried to do that when I saw Kent, but that I tried to remember it. And even then I couldn't! Covey wanted me to come over to Piedmont for supper and a talk with him and Kent, and how could I? I knew our engagement was going to be announced in a day or two, so I told him about it. I said to tell Kent. It seemed the only honest thing to do."

"I think that was wise," Phil said.

"I'll be glad when everyone knows Covey seemed completely stupefied. He said that he thought of course I still cared for Kent, and that sooner or later his wife would have to give in. And I had to say that I had never cared for Kent, that it was all a mistake and had been over months. I said that I had never loved him as I did you and that you and I were actually to be married in a week. He took it like a blow—oh, the whole thing's so stupid, and it's all my fault!" Jocelyn broke off to say wearily. "Do other women have such miserable, uncomfortable times with old love affairs, do you suppose? What is it, Phil?"

* * *

He had tipped his head backward toward the dark bulk of the house behind them, as if listening. "I thought it might be Mother," he said. "You didn't hear anything Jocelyn?"

Jocelyn twisted about to look toward the dimly lighted drawing room door, and saw a man's figure silhouetted black against the faint glow of the lamp inside. Her heart rose into her mouth with sheer instinctive terror, and she muttered to Philip, as she got to her feet.

"It is someone, Phil. Someone to see you."

They both were walking toward the figure now; it stood perfectly still. There was something fearful; something ominous in its immobility, its watchful silence.

"Hello!" Philip began, curious and friendly.

"Hello," the man said in a dead voice. And Jocelyn saw that it was Kent.

His appearance, in this sinister fashion, robbed Jocelyn of the power of speech, and she walked into the house with the two men conscious only of fear. No possible good could come of this night visit from this pale angry spector of a man, and so much harm could come!

"Hello, Dunham," Philip said. "Let's have a little more light in here. That's right, sit there. How's it happen no one let us know that you were here?"

"I didn't come to the front door. I was walking around the house," Kent explained, "and I heard your voices out on the terrace. I sat on the steps awhile, then I walked up the other steps and went into the room and waited there for a few minutes."

He looked pale and unkempt, and Jocelyn knew that he had been drinking. She took a chair opposite him at the hearth, and smiled nervously at him. Philip, with his pipe in his hand, stood between them.

"Cool enough for a fire? I should think so. And what'll you have? Want anything, Jocelyn? Nothing, eh? And you'll have a —a Scotch and soda, good. I've rung; he'll be here immediately. . . . A Scotch and soda, Lorenz, and I'll have just a glass of plain water. Nothing for Miss Britton. Well," Philip said, straightening up after touching a match to the fire, "what brings you down our way?"

"I heard the news. I suppose it's true," Kent said.

The Pleasant Way to Correct Constipation

Why let yourself in for all the discomfort of constipation—and then have to take an emergency medicine—if you can avoid both by getting at the cause of the trouble?

If your difficulty, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, the "better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy toasted cereal—a natural food, not a medicine—has just the "bulk" you need. If you eat it every day, it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular, month after month, by the pleasantest means you ever knew!

Eat All-Bran often, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1940.

After an absence of many years hitching posts return—modernized into parking meters.

It may as well be understood at the start-off that getting blotched up with tattoo marks is not a required part of the year's military training.

An Indian chief in Upper Ontario predicts a mild winter—and if he can induce his Indian summer to stick through the winter his reputation will be established.

Great Britain's Strength Grows

WHILE Greece is stalling the invading Italian war machine and rumors of a Hitler-inspired peace proposal continue to drift through from Europe, Great Britain is calmly preparing for its 1943 and 1944 campaigns against the totalitarian powers.

Talk of a peace proposal from Hitler can scarcely fail to be remindful of similar proposals by the kaiser during the early and middle stages of the World war, when all such suggestions were based on the assumption of German victory.

The fate of France, and the ruthless manner in which the hordes of Hitler have overrun Europe's small independent nations, gives an idea of what might be expected under terms of an Axis-dictated peace—and the prospect is not attractive.

Meanwhile the more cheering word comes that Britain looks toward air superiority within six months, which will give opportunity for greater offensive action against Germany and Italy than has thus far been practicable.

Agreement in the United States on a policy of all possible aid to Great Britain, in fighting planes and other materials needed to carry on the war will have a heartening effect on that courageous people.

Lacking the support of France and the participation of the United States, which played important parts in reaching the armistice stage of the World war, the brunt of completing the unfinished task of 1918 now rests upon Great Britain. It is encouraging to realize that Britain is taking a far look ahead in its preparations to achieve final victory and restore orderly self-government to Europe's small independent nations, which have been brutally ravaged during the past year.

It cannot yet be assumed that the dictatorships which have sought to dominate the world are actually on the run, but they have been slowed down and are visibly losing momentum and confidence. The turn of the tide may be nearer than is realized.

Time To Squelch Davey

ONCE again the voters of Ohio have evidenced, in what should be a conclusive manner, that they are all fed up with Martin L. Davey and have no notion of returning him to the governor's chair—or placing him in any other position of public trust.

It may be doubted if even the overwhelming defeat to which he was subjected last Tuesday will be effective in dampening the ardor or curbing the ego of the Kent tree surgeon, but it should at least serve to awaken Democrats of Ohio to the fact that Davey is a party liability instead of an asset, and that a way must be found to put him in the background and keep him there, if hope of success for the Democratic state ticket is to be revived.

Davey's record in the governor's office is too recent and vivid a recollection for voters to tolerate him further—as was shown by the reversal of a Roosevelt majority in the state to a trouncing defeat for Davey.

Bad Example By Mr. Knudsen

AFTER reading the item under the subhead. "Speeding Knudsen," in today's Washington Merry-Go-Round, you will have a better idea of why the annual death toll from traffic "accidents" hits around the 40,000 mark—and why it is so difficult to enforce reasonable speed limits.

Pearson and Allen, writers of the Merry-Go-Round, have an enviable reputation for accuracy of their information, and their recital of the Knudsen incident, in which a motor car speed of 107 miles an hour was attained on a highway between Lansing and Detroit, will be quite generally accepted as correct.

Such speed on a highway is not only illegal in any state but it involves elements of unreasonable risk to occupants of the speeding car and to other motorists as well—it also sets an example which many less competent drivers are inclined to follow.

Until more motorists who "know better" are willing to stay within safe speed limits it is quite unlikely that habitually careless and reckless drivers in the lower mental brackets can be induced to drive safely.

Madison Township's Schools

DEFEAT of the proposed $290,000 bond issue for improving Madison township schools cannot be interpreted as an expression of unwillingness on the part of voters to provide adequate township public school facilities.

Falling only a little short of the required 65 per cent majority, it appears more likely that defeat of the school bond proposal resulted from a belief of some voters that township school needs could be better served by expanding the Mansfield school district to include all of Madison township instead of limiting it to parts of the township to which it has already been extended.

Such an eventuality has already been given consideration, with an idea of sometime bringing Madison high into the city school system and erecting additional grade school buildings at advantageous points. Just how soon a change will be brought about, if deemed advisable, has not yet been determined.

Village Bans Liquor Selling

BY A close vote, residents of South Boulevards, newly incorporated village adjoining Mansfield on Lexington avenue, decided against the sale of intoxicants in that village.

This was one of the comparatively few "wet and dry" elections in Ohio this year and came about as the result of a liquor sales license having been granted by the state liquor commission to a recently established tavern in the village.

The ballot used for this special election presented five questions for "yes" or "no" votes, covering all phases of the sale of intoxicants, and a "dry" majority was returned on each of them.

HARD CLIMB TO WORLD SUPREMACY

Look to Brazil as Rubber Source

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

HENRY FORD is entitled to most of the credit for taking the initiative in the development of Brazil as a source of rubber supplies for our own country, which will need huge quantities of the crude stuff from there if Japan gobbles Malaya and the Dutch East Indies. It is from there that we get most of it now.

To be sure, congress recently appropriated $500,000 to finance the agriculture department in sending rubber specialists to the South American republic to encourage gum tree planting and the collection of the much-desired goo that they exude when tapped, just as maple trees leak sap here at home.

As a matter of fact, rubber trees grow wild up the Amazon, but the cultivated ones are more productive.

The department's representatives already are on their way. However, the mission is extremely belated. It also will take a lot more than $500,000 to make a success of the enterprise.

Henry Ford had the inspiration away ahead of congress and the agriculture department. It's been known for a good many years that the upper Amazon region is a rubber country. Long before the last World war attempts were made to exploit it as such. In those days though, there wasn't the demand for rubber that exists at present. Furthermore the gum has to be brought down the Amazon and there weren't the river boats to attend to the job. Consequently the early prospectors ultimately gave up in despair.

Ford Pioneers.

It was a short while after the 1914-18 conflict when Henry Ford's representatives arrived on the scene. On my way up the coast from Buenos Aires I stopped at the Brazilian port of Para or Belem (it's known by two names), at the Amazon's mouth, and met several of them there. They were going upstream soon, to stake out a plantation according to the terms of a concession Henry had obtained from the government at Rio de Janeiro.

It's slow work chewing out a plantation in that equatorial jungle and it took Henry quite an interval to get his tame rubber trees a-growing. I understand it will be a couple of years yet before they'll be oozing gum satisfactorily. But they say he has 3,000,000 trees.

Anyway, Ford has some forethought. He's miles ahead of congress and the agriculture department.

All-Water Route.

One item in rubber's favor is that the gum can be brought right out of the jungle to the edge of the Amazon, floated down to the Atlantic and brought up the coast by water to the United States—liquid transportation all the way.

True, if Brazilian rubber's to be brought down the Amazon, there'll have to be boats on the big river to carry it. The lack of them is what crabbed the game the other time.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Sunday, Nov. 7, 1920.

Eddy E. Warner moved from 386 Marion avenue to Columbus where he accepted position.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Thursday, Nov. 7, 1935.

Dr. Charles L. Anspach, was inaugurated president of Ashland college.

The annual Red Cross Roll call opened.

Mrs. Nan S. Miller, 46, died.

Twenty-three of Major Bowes' touring amateurs were presented at Madison theater by the 40 et 8 club of the American Legion.

Dr. F. O. Eckstein was elected worshipful master of the Mansfield Lodge, No. 35 F. and A. M.

TODAY IN HISTORY

The "Prophet" and his brother, Tecumseh, led an army of Indians of the Indian Confederacy against 1,200 American men in charge of General William Henry Harrison on Nov. 7, 1811. This was the famous battle of Tippecanoe.

Daily Bible Thought

Finally brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things.—Philippians 4.8.

Listen World!

Emphasis on 'Fun'

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THIS BUSINESS of Having Fun—how important is it? How much of our life should be devoted to it, particularly our adolescent life? Should it be merely incidental to the Main Job . . . or is it a Major Project in itself?

No, I'm not kidding. I'm seriously interested . . . and open to conviction. Take, for example, this business of Fun in our modern High Schools.

Did you take a course in ping-pong when you went to hi? Or contract bridge . . . or badminton? Not if you're the average parent of a high school youngster today!

Remember how we spent our days, Al and Alice, back in the old Hi in Greenfield? Racing in at 9 a. m., just before the bell stopped ringing? Watching the clock hands creeping, creeping, to closing time at 3:30 or 4. Sitting there seven hours in those old battered seats, with your nose in a book, standing before the dusty blackboards, recitin'. With a crack on your knuckles from Prof. Taylor if he caught you sending notes, or shying spitballs at Phil Weiman or Mabel McKay. Not much chance at ping-pong then!

The very thought of it would have given "The Trustees" the Screaming Meamies. "Life was real and life was earnest," and you'd better remember it—or else! Why, they even raised a rumpus when someone wanted to turn the cellar into a gym.

"Gosh all catfish—what kind of gol-danged nonsense is that? Expectin' Taxpayers to spend their good money on a lotta fool gadgets! Kids oughtta get their exercise where the Old Folks got theirs—pitchin' hay 'n' washing dishes. Besides, things like that didn't have no place in schools. Schools were for getting an education 'n' nothing else but."

Thus, Grandpa snorting, back at the turn of the century. Wonder how he'd feel if he dropped in now. Things have certainly changed. Well, why not? Personally I think that most of them have changed for the best. And I'm a million for any new idea that will make life a greater adventure. But there's one angle to this new regime which has me stumped—that's this question of FUN.

Nothing in our whole design for living has changed as much as our attitude toward Fun. Back in the 80's and 90's, Nice Folks didn't take Fun very seriously . . . still thought it was nice but not necessary and that folks who sought it in wholesale lots were "sorta trifling."

Sacrifice and Service had been the Big Idea for so long. Too long! Thanks be, we got over that. Found that a healthy, happy body isn't a crime . . . and that an immortal soul has surely as much right to be gay as a buttercup. Then came grim War Years. And, with their passing, Fun became the leading MUST. Today it ranks right up with the Vitamins as a Vital Necessity. So what? Is it or isn't it?

AND SHOULD IT BE GIVEN SUCH A PROMINENT PLACE IN OUR HIGH SCHOOL PROGRAMS?

Why pick on the Hi's particularly? I'm not picking. I'm just asking. But High School years do deserve special consideration because they cover the most plastic and sensitive years in a youngster's life. They are the years in which he is turning into an adult . . . sizing up his world . . . shaping his standards . . . choosing his values. Later on, he may still be muddled, many a time. But he'll have acquired a foundation on which to act. He's making that foundation in Hi.

SHOULD IT BE A FOUNDATION OF FUN?

Should a girl be allowed to feel that a course in Contract Bridge ranks equally with History and Math as equipment for her future life? Or a boy of 15, who can't give a coherent opinion on modern history or any public problem, be allowed to devote three or more hours per day to football practice? Should they both feel that life's a flop if there isn't a party once per week . . . and expect to dress, dine and dance on as elaborate a scale as their college friends—or their own parents.

They are doing just these things with the consent and approval of their teachers, families, school boards, and the vast majority of American citizens. So what? You tell.

Timely Editorial

College Cut-ups.

A peculiar trait of college students is the occasional hoodlumism to which they give vent. For instance, a homecoming demonstration at Madison, Wis., the other day, after students had blocked traffic, upset parked automobiles, rocked buses until passengers were almost thrown from their seats and threw eggs and vegetable at policemen, ended only when tear gas bombs were used to scatter them.

No doubt a great time was had by all, but college students, if you were to ask them in all seriousness, claim to be among the elite of the nation: supposedly they have an interest in learning, culture and manners and supposedly they are the cream of the country's youth. Any other group that instituted a riot such as can be started by a gang of students would be handled roughly and summarily.

No doubt they are actuated by the young, animal spirit of youth to engage in such fun. But the destruction they cause at such times represents no less of a property loss than if the destruction were done by professional racketeers.—Columbus Dispatch.

Vichy Takes Orders From Berlin; Inside Story of Fiasco at Dakar

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—It has not leaked out yet, but the state department went pretty far in pressuring the Vichy government to surrender the 93 planes which the U. S. navy once sold France and which now are rusting away at Martinique. The state department even threatened to sever diplomatic relations if the French were too stiff-necked about these airplanes.

Sumner Welles has had several talks with Ambassador Henri-Haye regarding Martinique, and at one time when Welles asked that the planes be returned to the United States, the French ambassador actually replied: "I'm afraid it might get us into trouble with Berlin."

In other words, Vichy is taking orders from Berlin almost every step of the way.

Meanwhile the agreement negotiated by Marshal Petain and Hitler is cloaked in the strictest secrecy. Some of the main points have leaked out, however, and if these leaks are correct, France and Germany agree to cooperate for the peace of Europe. Since Great Britain is now the only country disturbing "the peace of Europe"—at least in the eyes of the Nazis—this means that France will cooperate with Germany in forcing Britain into peace.

This is the formula by which France justifies the leasing to Germany of her naval bases and airfields around the Mediterranean. This means Nazi control of Syria, all-important in the Nazi drive from the Balkans to Suez; and Dakar, which is all important in disrupting British shipping lines around the tip end of Africa to Australia, India and the Far East.

* * *

What Happened at Dakar.

FRENCH military circles have now brought back the inside story of the British fiasco at Dakar when General de Gaulle tried to land but had to turn back.

The British had secured secret assurances from the French fleet that the three cruisers which they let through the Straits of Gibraltar into the Atlantic would cooperate with the British when the British were ready to take over the important naval base at Dakar.

However, the French navy is traditionally anti-British, inclined to be pro-fascist. The French army, on the other hand is vigorously pro-British. And the French navy double-crossed them.

So when General de Gaulle appeared with British warships just off the Dakar naval base, the French officers, instead of living up to their advance pledge, opened fire. Simultaneously, French colonial troops came rushing down to the beach, virtually holding out their hands to the British to send landing parties ashore.

The British did not know the attitude of the French army. All they knew was that the anti-British French naval officers had opened fire. The British had no way of knowing that their landing parties might not be fired on also. So de Gaulle and his ill-fated mission sailed for home.

* * *

Note—Admiral Robert, French commander of naval forces at Martinique, is absolutely opposed to any surrender to the United States. He is sitting tight and contends that it will take a keg of dynamite to blast him from his position in the French West Indies.

Senator's Females.

NOW that it's all over, the story can be told of the rift in the Wheeler household over the election.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana is a Democrat, but he has made more trouble for Roosevelt than most Republicans. A good part of that trouble has been inspired by the senator's wife, whose ill-will for the president is famous in the Capital. And Roosevelt, in his own way, reciprocates the ill-will, dubbing Mrs. Wheeler "Lady Macbeth."

The big scene in the drama came one night when Senator and Mrs. Wheeler were listening to the news broadcast of Fulton Lewis, jr. The Wheelers happen to be intimate with the Clarks (Senator Bennett Clark of Missouri), who rival them in their dislike of the president and his foreign policy.

Therefore, Mrs. Wheeler was amazed when she heard from the radio that Senator Clark intended to come out for Roosevelt. With fire in her eyes, she turned upon her husband.

"I don't believe it," she cried. "I'm going to call Miriam (Mrs. Clark) and get her to deny it. And if you ever do such a thing, Burton, I'll walk out of the house and leave you!"

By this time the radio voice was saying, "And now I have an even greater surprise." Here Fulton Lewis paused for suspense. "Still another isolationist Senator," he said, "is coming out for Roosevelt, namely, Burton K. Wheeler of Montana!"

What happened in the Wheeler household at that point is not recorded, but some days later it was observed that Wheeler's "indorsement" of Roosevelt was very mild—nothing stronger than: "From the information available, I understand that the Democratic ticket will be successful."

The Capital had once again seen the truth of the Kipling refrain, "The female of the species is more deadly than the male."

Speedy Knudsen.

WILLIAM KNUDSEN, husky production wizard of the Defense Commission, is a man of very simple tastes, but he has one weakness. The former General Motors boss loves to drive fast.

After completing some labor negotiations in Lansing, Mich., Knudsen invited friends to drive back with him to Detroit in his Cadillac. One of the guests sat in front with the chauffeur, and shortly noticed that telegraph poles were flitting by with unusual speed.

Glancing at the speedometer, he nearly fainted to see the needle pointing at 107 miles an hour.

Knudsen was chatting calmly in the back seat, and the front seat guest, although scared out of his wits, hesitated to show his alarm. Finally, he made this very casual observation: "Bill, are the speedometers on these cars accurate?"

Knudsen leaned forward, studied the meter intently, then settling back in his seat replied: "Yes, they're accurate, but not so reliable over 95."

* * *

Merry-Go-Round.

SEVERAL outstanding British labor leaders soon will come to the United States at the invitation of American labor leaders, to give first hand accounts of British Labor's role in the war. . . . It costs $1 to turn out 140 greenback bills at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, biggest money factory in the world. Daily average output is 3,300,000 notes of various denominations. The Bureau also averages 46,000,000 postage stamps, and patent certificates. . . . Commerce Secretary Jesse Jones is planning to reorganize the Business Advisory Council he inherited from Harry Hopkins and make it a more forthright outfit. Jesse plans to add a number of small business men to the group. There is none on it now.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—We have a play in town now that deals with one curiously funny aspect of life in the eastern section of the U. S. It is "George Washington Slept Here."

If you are familiar with this section of the country you'll know what this means. It is hard to travel along any country road without coming upon at least one sign, "In 1777 George Washington Spent the Night in This House," or "In the Chill, Misty Dawn of Nov. 8, 1779, George Washington Tethered His Horse to This Tree." If we were to make firewood of all the trees which allegedly served the General as a hitching post we could supply the nation with fuel.

* * *

GEORGE S. KAUFMAN and Moss Hart, who took time out to register for conscription the other day, have approached this matter in their usual irreverent manner.

They have dreamed up some mighty hilarious characters for the theater in recent years such as the woman who wrote plays in "You Can't Take It With You." The reason she wrote plays was because a typewriter had been left at her house by mistake some 10 years before. Of course, she never finished any.

In this household also was a man whose name no one knew. He had lived with the family 10 years. "We never knew his name," the lady "playwright" explained. "He brought the milk one morning and just stayed on. He never mentioned his name and in the 10 years he's been here we never felt that we had the right to ask him."

Those are the kind of people that Kaufman and Hart love to write about. In "George Washington Slept here," which was plagued by misfortune and even death before it opened, you have the story of a man who longs to have a country place of his own and of his wife who hates the country. But they find a rundown old house which meets with the old man's satisfaction because, as a real estate agent assured him, "George Washington Slept Here." The blow-off comes when they learn it was Benedict Arnold instead of Washington.

* * *

IT ISN'T often that Kaufman-Hart shows have much trouble. With Sam Harris producing they have grown into a sort of fate-defying triumvirate that swims happily from one success to another.

But finally the fates began to catch up with Kaufman, Hart, and Harris during "George Washington" rehearsals. Its original premiere date had to be postponed because of an injury to Ernest Truex. A second opening date was announced. Then Burton Churchill, who had a leading part, died. Dudley Digges had to be called in, a new opening date set.

Its premiere was greeted with reviews that were reservedly commendatory. Everybody liked the show, but some observers thought certain members of the cast were to conscious of the fact that had important lines to speak. Personally, I wouldn't know. Performances change from day to day. I thought it was funny.

Note: The gag on Broadway among those who don't like the play now is that should be titled "George Kaufman Slipped Here."

Grab Bag

1. Was George Washington ever accused of incompetence?
2. What are the primary human emotions?
3. What causes the sound of humming by bees?

Hints on Ettiquette.

No need to be self-conscious about speaking to an acquaintance when you meet on the street, even if you are a younger woman and the acquaintance is a man. Say, "How do you do?" or "Hello" cordially. It may be construed as rudeness or unfriendliness if you do not speak.

One-Minute Test Answers.

1. Yes, he was accused of gross incompetence and favoritism in 1777, and a move was made by a certain group of men to displace him as commander-in-chief of the American armies.
2. Fear, anger, love.
3. The rapid vibration of the bee's wings.

A Farmer's Diary

One Man's Views

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I TALKED to an old man who rode with me. He wore a bushy gray beard and was deeply wrinkled. His large old hands were knotty from work and rheumatism. His worn black suit had a greenish cast across the shoulders. His thin white hair hung long, as protection to his shrunken neck.

"I never drove an automobile," he said. "I was most too old when they came in and thought I might hurt somebody. From the way I see some hellions drive, I guess it wouldn't hurt if some other folks felt like I do."

"Did you always farm?"

"Well—yes, and no. I allus owned a patch o' ground and lived off'n it. I worked in a shop when I was younger. Got laid off to make room for a younger man and a machine. Funny thing—efficiency. There was a long while that experts tried to teach farmers how to make two blades of grass grow where one grew before. They hired efficiency experts in all the shops to put in machines instead o' men and increase production and profit. Some of the experts even strayed out among the farmers and made fun of their ways of doin' things. Lots of 'em turned to plantin' a single crop and bought machinery to take the place of hired help. Now, lately, it's the other way. See that field of weeds right there? The government paid that man to let it alone. It's bad, I claim, for a fellow to go hungry who won't work, but to pay him for bein' idle is just plumb foolishness. They say we have big surpluses. It nary happened yet that all the people were fed plenty or had enough to wear. I'd like to see that once.

"Another thing. They've made it too easy for farmers to go into debt. Four of my neighbors are between 50 and 60 and they've still got an average of 20 years to pay on their farms. If they live and keep workin' till they're 80 they may be free of debt. But an older man can't work so hard, and they're apt to lose. A man had better borrow from an honest, tight-fisted banker to buy a small place he can pay for in a few years. I guess I talk too much—here's where I get out."

I thanked him as I let him off.

Huge U. S. Bomber Ready for Britain

This giant four-engined bomber, shown as it was prepared for a test flight, was built for the British at the Consolidated Aircraft plant at San Diego, Calif. It is camouflaged and has R. A. F. markings. A large number of similar planes are under construction. Capable of carrying four tons of bombs at 300 m. p. h. for 3,000 miles non-stop, they probably will be flown across the Atlantic.

AIR BILLBOARD

CHICAGO—(INS)—The first airways billboard was on display today. Atop the Johnson and Johnson company plant, adjacent to the Chicago municipal airport is a neon sign which is visible only from the air. The sign, which is 35 feet long and 25 feet wide, is in the form of the company trademark, a red cross flanked by two "J's."

Ohioans In Congress Contest for Committee Posts

APPROPRIATION JOB LOOMS AS BIGGEST PRIZE

Agriculture and Flood Control Positions Also Rated as Important.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Ohioans in the next session of congress are expected to contest for several important posts made vacant by the defeat of four Buckeye members in Tuesday's election and the retirement of three others.

A committee prize is the appropriations committee seat vacated by Rep. Dudley White (R.) of the 13th district, who forewent a chance for re-election to the house to seek unsuccessfully the senatorial nomination.

Ohioans from farm areas will be interested in retaining for the state the agriculture committee seat of Rep. James G. Polk (D.) of the sixth district, who is retiring from public life after ten years in the house.

Buckeye members also will be loath to give up the seat of Rep. Earl Lewis (R.) of the 18th district on the important flood control committee in which the state has two other members, Representatives Harold K. Claypool (D.) of the 11th and Robert Secrest (D.) of the 15th. Secrest and Claypool were re-elected but Lewis lost to former Rep. Lawrence E. Imhoff (D.).

Rep. Harry N. Routzohn (R.) of the third, who was defeated by Greg Holbrook (D.), gained nationwide attention as a member of the house committee which investigated the National Labor Relations Board. Routzohn's regular committee assignments were labor, pensions, revisions of law, and World war veterans' legislation, all important to the Buckeye state.

Representative-at-large L. L. Marshall (R.) of Cleveland is a member of the civil service and patents committee. He lost to Stephen M. Young (D.), former congressman-at-large.

A seat on the postoffice and postroads committee is held by Rep. Jim Seccombe (R.) who was defeated by former Rep. William R. Thom (D.) in the 16th district.

Democrats gained four house seats in Tuesday's election and won equal representation with Republicans on Ohio's house delegation of 24 members.

(Complete except as noted)

x—Incumbent; R—Republican; D—Democrat.)

Representative at Large (two elected)—8,546 of 8,675 precincts: George H. Bender (R-x) 1,474,922, L. L. Marshall (R-x) 1,315,118, Francis W. Durbin (D) 1,356,276, Stephen M. Young (D) 1,458,033.

First District — Charles H. Elston (R-x) 94,818, Joseph A. Dixon (D) 61,905

COX NOMINATES FDR AMBASSADOR

Calls Former Running Mate Good Will Envoy.

DAYTON—(U.P.)—Former Governor James M. Cox of Ohio, Democratic presidential nominee in 1920 when Franklin D. Roosevelt was the vice presidential nominee, said in his newspapers today:

"Much has been said about ambassadors. We nominate one. Franklin D. Roosevelt, ambassador of good will. There is much to be done at home and abroad. We hope and believe he will do it.

Cox is publisher of the Dayton News, the Springfield News-Sun and other newspapers.

HALT RESCUE

Nazis Refuse Safe Conduct to American Ship.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— The state department announced today that the German government had refused to grant safe conduct for a United States vessel to make a voyage to Great Britain to repatriate 1,200 Americans now in that country.

The refusal was made after the Italian government had assured Washington that it was willing to guarantee that its submarines would not attack the ship and also after a copy of this note was shown to the reich authorities in Berlin.

Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy urged the state department to send a vessel to bring home Americans who now are isolated in war torn London.

FIVE CRUSHED

Workmen Buried By Collapse of Traffic Tunnel.

PITTSBURGH—(AP)— Five colored workmen were crushed to death today by the collapse of a nearby Stowe township traffic tunnel which they were repairing.

Eight men were in the tunnel at the time a section of the concrete roof fell but three—warned of danger by a "sudden loud, cracking" noise—escaped. One of three, William Peay, 30, was injured.

Bodies of the five were dug out of the debris five hours after the accident by rescuers working with steam shovels.

The tunnel, about 15 feet high and 800 feet long, runs through a hill connecting two communities. It was condemned 10 years ago but recently, in response to complaints, the county commissioners ordered it repaired.

BRITISH TAKE SUDAN POINT

Gallabat Recaptured According to Cairo Report.

CAIRO, Egypt —(AP)— British troops have recaptured Gallabat, on the Sudanese-Ethiopian frontier, from the Italians, British general headquarters in the middle east announced today.

Gallabat is on the Sudan side of the line, about 75 miles west of Lake Gondar, Ethiopia. Italian troops moved into the town soon after Italy entered the war. (The Italian communique acknowledged today that the British had attacked Gallabat, were repulsed, and then attacked again, and said the battle still was under way.)

MOTHERS MEET

The adoption of a constitution will be the principal business under discussion when the Mansfield Senior high school Band Mothers club meets at the residence of Mrs J. C. Klinger, 140 Reba avenue Friday at 2 p. m.

Plans for a rummage sale to be held next Wednesday and Thursday at a storeroom, 19 East Sixth street, will also be discussed during the meeting.

Galion

The topic discussed Wednesday night at the meeting of the Luther league at Trinity Lutheran church was "Weak Spots in the Luther League Program." The leaders were Edith and Clayton Balhett. Others taking part on a program of literary numbers were Mrs. Fred Stirm, Anna Tracht and Mrs. Lawrence Helfrich. Social hours and refreshments followed and were in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Helfrich and the Grover Balhett family.

MANSFIELD BUSINESS MEN AT CINCINNATI C. OF C. MEETING

A delegation of Mansfield business men was among Ohio's industrial leaders who gathered in Cincinnati today to discuss the mobilization of business for national defense at the Ohio Chamber of Commerce's 47th annual convention.

George B. Chandler, executive vice president, called the meeting the most important held by organized business in Ohio in 25 years.

A series of panel discussions will be held on labor relations, taxations, and unemployment compensation.

Resolutions to be presented for approval include one which would call upon the government to liquidate "those government lending enterprises no longer required and thus relieve competition with private enterprise."

Another would endorse a "scientifically constructed" war excess profits tax. Others deal with radio censorship, hydro-electric power, and the St. Lawrence seaway.

Heading the Mansfield delegates and alternates are C. L. VanDerau, president of the Mansfield chamber, and John W. Graham, a director of the state organization and representative for Ohio newspapers.

INSTITUTES

Eight Rural Meetings Planned In Ashland County.

ASHLAND—R. B. Tom, of Ohio State university was in Ashland county Wednesday conducting discussions relative to the winter's activities in rural communities.

In the afternoon he met with the officers of the Farmers Institutes from all sections of the county, in the courthouse auditorium. Ministers and other civic leaders from the various communities were invited to assist in the discussion. "Community Planning" comprised the afternoon's discussion. The eight Farmers Institutes will all be held in February.

The evening was devoted to a meeting with the representatives of the senior 4-H organizations of the county, held in the extension office. A planning program and recreational activities were the topic of discusson.

BIBLE CLASS TO MEET AT PARK

Opening of a Community Bible class at Prospect park pavilion Friday at 7:30 p. m. was announced today by Rev. A. D. Cashman of Ashland.

The class, which will continue to meet indefinitely, will be devoted to a careful study of St. Paul's epistle and current questions

Some of the subjects which will be discussed will be, "Why Hitler Cannot Win the War," "What Is Happening in the Mediterranean?" "Who Will Dictate to the Dictators?" "Why the War Must Go to the East," and "How Will the Nations Finally Line Up?"

DRIVER HELD IN TRAFFIC DEATH

Charged With Manslaughter In Akron Accident.

AKRON—(U.P.)—Police held Walter Williams, 41, on a second degree manslaughter charge today in connection with the death of Clifford Wallace, 51, run over by a truck.

Police said that Wallace, a passenger in Williams' automobile, fell out and was run over by a truck driven by Paul E. Russell, 35. Authorities charged that Williams was intoxicated and swerved his car causing Wallace to fall out.

GETS FUNDS

City Receives $123,108 In Real Estate Tax Money.

The city's general operating fund was given a "shot in the arm" today with the receipt of second half year property tax settlement of $123,108 from the county.

Of the total amount, City Auditor Paul L. Kelley said $67,338 would go into the general fund to wipe out a $19,795 deficit. The funds will go towards meeting anticipated expenditures for the balance of the year.

Of the balance of the settlement, $29,478 will go for bond retirement, $16,886 to the sinking fund for special assessments, $3,281 for police pensions and $2,949 for firemen's pensions.

Whooping Cough Cases In County Down 100 Per Cent

A decline in the number of cases of whooping cough which has kept health authorities on the jump the past two months was shown today in a health department report of contagious diseases during October.

Submitted to the board of health by Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county commissioner, the report showed a decline of nearly 100 per cent in whooping cough.

A total of 65 cases of communicable diseases were reported during October, an increase of four over the September total.

Only 26 cases of whooping cough were reported as compared to 40 the month previous. Chicken pox showed an increase, seven cases reported in October as against one in September.

There was 17 cases of veneral disease, four pneumonia, five of scarlet fever, and one each of infantile paralysis, tuberculosis, para typhoid fever, and undulant fever.

Senior High Cast To Present 'New Fires' Tonight

With final rehearsals for "New Fires," senior class play, being held last night, members of the cast today were anxiously waiting the rise of the curtain at 8:15 tonight in the Mansfield Senior high school auditorium.

The play, a comedy in three acts, deals with a family of pampered city people, who move to a farm and are made to work for their living by the head of the family.

Principal parts in the play will be taken by William Fink, Ada Mae Harbaugh, and Maxine Zimmerman. Fink plays the part of Stephen Santry, the head of the family, while Ada Mae Harbaugh and Maxine Zimmerman play his wife and daughter, respectively.

Neutral Yugoslavia took a sharply stronger stand in the Balkan conflict with a government warning it would answer with "armed force" any repetition of attacks on Yugoslav territory—such as the bombing of Bitolj by unidentified foreign planes Tuesday.

In the battle of Britain, Nazi warplanes gave London's subway-sleeping millions their longest night attack of the war, and in Southampton rescue squads still dug this morning for the dead and living entombed in the ruins of many buildings.

Students and teachers were buried under the rubble of a Southampton school smashed by three German bombs, and clerks and typists were trapped under a demolished row of office buildings.

Other Nazi raiders scattered bombs over a wide area from the south coast of England to Scotland

Hitler's high command reported heavy aerial blows against the British merchant marine

Long-range RAF bombers retaliated by attacking the Berlin suburb of Spandau, the London air ministry reported, while other RAF bombs were dropped on "a concentration of shipping" at Cuxhaven, Germany, and on a convoy of ships off Den Helder, Holland.

RAF night raiders also rained explosives on German "Big Bertha" gun emplacements at Cap Gris Nez, the air ministry said

Berlin asserted that RAF planes which attempted to raid the capital were forced to turn back before they could drop any bombs, but the Nazi high command admitted that attacks "on German territory" killed and wounded several persons

From the sound of some of the raiders' motors, British observers said they were sure the Italians were taking an increasingly large part in the assaults upon Britain.

Although some persons were killed and injured in London and a number of homes and apartment houses were destroyed, the British government said damage and casualties resulting from the widespread raids were not in general large

Earlier this morning German long range guns on the French coast opened up and shelled the Dover area for more than two hours

Soviet Russia, celebrating the 23rd anniversary of the Bolshevist revolution, re-affirmed a policy of armed neutrality. Russia, which in the past 14 months has gained territory from six neighbors, was reported unofficially in Turkey to have withdrawn some troops from the Turkish border as a goodwill gesture

Diplomatic Shuffle Hinted

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Presaging action to reinforce American foreign policies, President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull today began re-checking the nation's diplomatic representation in European capitals.

As a result of the war and the consequently altered relationships with belligerent nations, there has been a considerable "turnover" among American ambassadors and ministers in Europe necessitating a reshuffling soon and probably several changes in important posts

Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to Great Britain, whose return to the United States produced reports he intended to resign, conferred with Secretary Hull yesterday but declined to discuss the future except to tell newspapermen he had "no plans."

Kennedy has been mentioned as a possible chairman of the national defense committee, a position not yet filled by President Roosevelt.

The United States is now represented at London, Berlin, Rome and France by charges d'affaires instead of the usual ambassadors

Envoys to several countries, occupied by Germany or Soviet Russia, or wiped off the map by the conquering nations, also are here awaiting decision by the president and Secretary Hull as to the future status of the once-independent countries.

Increase Seen In British Aid

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Foreign diplomats believed today that President Roosevelt soon would give increased "short of war" aid to Great Britain and China.

Mr. Roosevelt's re-election was hailed in the embassies and legations—with the exception of those of Germany, Italy and Japan—as a mandate to provide more ships, guns, airplanes and supplies of all kinds.

It was intimated in some administration quarters that Mr. Roosevelt might ask the next congress to repeal the Johnson act prohibiting loans to nations in default on past debts and to repeal the "cash and carry" provision of the neutrality act. The British government's finances, they said, are becoming strained by the necessity of paying cash for all war supplies purchased in this country.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull said the election results had given approval to "a firm continuance of our foreign policy"

JAPS RETREAT

Leave Great Fires In Cities Being Evacuated.

CHUNGKING — (INS) — Great fires were blazing today in the path of retreating Japanese troops. Chinese military circles charged, claiming that some of China's largest cities had been set ablaze.

While authoritative military circles understood Japanese forces were planning to continue occupation only in cities within 40 miles of the Chinese coastline, these quarters said at least eight large cities and some smaller towns were in flames

Among the cities, it was said, are Nanking, Canton, Ichang, Hankow, Kaifeng and Nanchang.

Chinese military circles hinted the reported evacuation might mean a drive on Hong Kong Otherwise, they said, the Japanese army would hardly abandon such valuable bases for trans-shipment of military supplies

German Citizens Leaving Greece

BELGRADE —(AP)— Trustworthy advices from Greece today said that all Germans in Greece had been advised by German diplomatic officials to leave the country at once

This move was interpreted in neutral diplomatic quarters as indicating possibly that Germany foresees no early fulfillment of the expressed hope for a quick settlement of the conflict.

Sixty-one members of the German commercial service in Greece arrived here. They had left Athens with the Italian legation staff.

Train service between Greece and Germany, which are separated by the length of Yugoslavia, has been at a standstill since the Italian-Greek outbreak.

Reds Celebrate 23rd Birthday

MOSCOW—(U.P.)—Acclaiming its own neutrality in a spreading "capitalistic" war and its gains of territory in the Baltic and the Balkans, the Soviet union celebrated its 23d national birthday, today, the anniversary of the "10 days that shook the world—the Bolshevik revolution."

Tens of thousands of soldiers and civilians, the soldiers representing all arms of the service and the civilians carrying banners, assembled to march through the Red square past Lenin's tomb and the reviewing stand filled with notables from Josef Stalin down.

Semyon Timoshenko, marshal in the army and commissar of defense, sounded the keynote in an order of the day which emphasized Russia's territorial gains during the year and the necessity for constant vigilance to protect the frontiers of the Soviet Union.

radio announcer broadcasting an account of his arrival and said: "Go to it, young man, you're talking against time."

Before leaving the train, Mr. Roosevelt thanked the colored porter and asked him to thank the rest of the crew of his special train.

Mr. Roosevelt also turned to Wallace to say in a stage whisper:

"I have my old campaign hat on."

Mr. Roosevelt referred to the old felt hat that he always has worn on campaign tours in the belief that it brings him good luck

Mr. Roosevelt was driven from the train shed to the plaza where he spoke in a big open car In the automobile with him were Mrs Roosevelt and Wallace and Mrs Wallace.

After speaking for a few minutes, the president in his car, followed by others containing cabinet members, newspapermen and others with the official party, started toward the White House As the car pulled away, a band struck up "God Bless America"

Then, the procession from the station to the White House began Everywhere the streets were jammed with cheering throngs Hundreds of American flags were draped from buildings, and thousands of people crowded to the windows and on the flat roofs of office buildings to cheer Mr Roosevelt.

At the entrance to the White House alone, between 4,00 and 5,000 people alone were jammed. Inside the grounds, the entire White House staff was gathered to welcome their "boss."

The celebration was all over in the space of 10 or 15 minutes, the time it took for Mr Roosevelt to be driven from the station to the White House

But it was a great spontaneous gesture by a great multitude to a man who had attained what no other American ever had—a third term in the White House

When the president arrived at the executive mansion he went to the north portico to appear before the waiting crowd for about three minutes The throng set up a chant "We want Roosevelt" To that, the president waved a greeting, but he did not speak

Willkie Studies Party Policies

NEW YORK — (INS) — Enjoying his first full day of leisure in many weeks, Wendell L. Willkie, the defeated Republican presidential candidate, today began laying the groundwork for a continued battle for his campaign policies

Shortly, as titular head of the Republican party, Willkie is expected to formulate its program as the opposition party in the third New Deal administration.

While yielding nothing in the philosophies he expressed in his campaign speeches and predicting their eventual adoption, Willkie was nevertheless pledged to national unity and complete cooperation with the defense program.

Willkie and Mrs. Willkie, their son, Philip, Edward Willkie, the candidate's brother and his constant companion, and the latter's wife, had a quiet, intimate family dinner last night. Earlier Willkie had left the Republican campaign headquarters after thanking party aides for their loyalty.

Accepting the election result with "complete good-will," Willkie nevertheless made it plain he believes the Republican party should put up an intelligent, united and aggressive opposition to those of the Rooseveltian policies which it cannot accept. Willkie himself is to formulate the standards for this opposition. He said he wished to take his time in drawing up the program and to "reflect" upon it thoroughly.

"This does not mean, however, that the existence of considerable unused capacity in Mansfield will be overlooked," he added "The effects upon the industries concerned and their employes have in some cases been serious It may be said with assurance that steps will be taken to enable these industries to contribute at the same time to their own welfare, that of the city and the cause of national defense by being given a place in a co-ordinated defense effort"

Casaday said that proper planning may also enable other Mansfield industries not classed as depressed but which he said have unused capacities, to participate in the program

He stressed that as defense preparations are extended into smaller industrial centers throughout the nation, it will be "necessary that the government have the co-operation of management, labor and the community"

FEDERAL BOND TAXES URGED

ment borrowing up to June 30, 1942, would approximate $15,000,000,000 to $20,000 000,000 One of the first steps in the government's financing program will be to ask congress to add the $4,000 000,000 already authorized for defense financing to the present statutory debt limit of $45 000,000 000 That move would be a technical one to establish the debt limit at $49,000 000,000

Morgenthau said that the treasury does not contemplate any attempt to impose a retroactive tax on government securities. The proposed tax, he said would be applied to new issues, and he estimated that approximately $2,000,000,000 in state and municipal financing issues will mature next year He said he expected all issues thereafter to be taxable.

He refused to estimate at what cost the government could obtain money if the tax exemption on government issues were removed He admitted that the cost might rise slightly

"The time has come," Morgenthau said, "to make all government securities pay taxes. Just as soon as the proper congressional committee meets, I or a representative of the treasury, will place the matter before it."

Morgenthau declared that he had no fear of inflation

"With Roosevelt here we can take the necessary steps when abnormal price trends appear and we are going to watch every minute. We will keep the cost of living stable"

However, Morgenthau said it would be impossible now to adopt a pay as you go policy.

10-VOTE GAIN FOR NEW DEAL

Democrats Add to Strength In House, But Drop Four Senate Votes.

had registered a net gain of nine seats by ousting 23 incumbent Republicans while losing 14 of their own seats to Republican candidates. The division of strength stood Democrats, 266; Republicans, 161; Progressives, 3, American Labor 1.

If the four undecided contests do not switch any seats between parties the division will be Democrats, 268; Republicans, 162. The other seat is now held by a Farmer Laborite.

Under the present division of the house, the desertion of 40 or 45 Democratic members to vote with the sold Republican minority has frequently been enough to defeat the New Deal In the new house, the Republicans would need about 55 Democrats to do it—and the extra 10 Democratic votes may turn the trick for the administration on many close issues

Of the 35 senate seats at stake, Democrats appear to have won 22, Republicans 11, and a Progressive, Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, one One is uncertain, with Republican William Langer leading Independent Republican William Lemke in North Dakota

Democrats picked up a seat in Delaware but apparently lost seats in Indiana, Illinois, Nebraska, and Ohio But because of seats not a stake this year, the Democrats will have 66 senate seats, a comfortable majority.

U. S. Couriers Now Flock to Swiss Capital

BERN, Switzerland —(AP)— The iron gate of the United States legation at Bern swings open several times each week to admit travel-weary young men bearing sealed gray sacks toward which their manner is something akin to hat of a mother hen toward her chicks

Next day, surrounded by more bulging sacks, they will be rolling off to distant frontiers, through countries where no lights glow at night, where air raids may halt trains and where food rationing makes thick steaks rare indeed.

The gray sacks are the diplomatic pouches of the United States Department of State They are stuffed with the reports which influence American foreign policy and the department confidential instructions to its emissaries abroad The young men are the couriers who chaperon this freight hither and yon over Europe's war-disrupted transportation systems.

The legation in Bern is small, but war has made it the State Department's central postoffice in Europe.

LEGISLATURE GAINS SHOWN BY DEMOCRATS

Gov. Bricker Retains Working Majority With 78 Seats Saved By GOP.

(By Associated Press)

The Republican party's dominant position in the present Ohio legislature was jolted by Democratic gains in Tuesday's election, complete unofficial returns indicated today, but Gov. John W. Bricker still retained an easy working majority.

In the senate, the Republicans saved 20 seats, while the Democrats took 16. In the 1939-40 assembly, the Republicans had 27 to eight for the Democrats. Under the automatic reapportionment, the new upper branch will increase one member to 36.

Republicans kept 78 house seats, compared with 100 at present, while the Democrats took 60, 24 more than in the 1939-40 assembly. Reapportionment increased the house members from 136 to 138.

Following are the elected members to the 1941-42 assembly:

COURT FORBIDS COP BALL GAME

Says Chief Had No Right To Stop for Softball While Doing Investigating.

ALBANY, N. Y.—(INS)—When Police Chief Cyril J. Donnelly of Smithtown, Long Island, stopped to play softball while engaged in the investigation of a burglary, he shed his title and became plain Mr. Donnelly.

This was the effect of a decision by the Appellate Division refusing to award the chief workmen's compensation benefits for an ankle injury suffered as he was rounding third base during the game.

Donnelly went to the state police barracks to get a trooper to assist him in the burglary investigation the day of the injury. While waiting for the trooper, he took part in a softball game and the injury resulted.

He said it was part of his duty to wait for the trooper, and that it was in the interest of his employer, the town, to maintain cordial relations with the state police by accepting the invitation to "knock out a few."

The Appellate Division disagreed in a unanimous decision reversing the award granted by the State Industrial Board, and dismissing the claim.

"There is no evidence whatever that this accident arose out of and in the course of his employment," the court's memorandum read. "It was neither incidental to his employment nor in the interest of his employer."

FUNERAL HELD

BUCYRUS — Funeral services were held this afternoon at the Wise funeral home for Perry Earl Moderwell, 66, Bucyrus mechanic, who died in City hospital Tuesday following a five weeks' illness. Burial was made in Oakwood cemetery.

The deceased was born in Sandusky township and lived most of his life in this community. He was unmarried. His only close survivors are several cousins.

A Private Trial Fitting Of New Rice Support

If you are ruptured and wear a truss, now is your opportunity to get a 30-day trial of a scientifically constructed rupture Support "made up" to meet the needs of your particular and individual condition.

On Saturday, November 9, Rice Fitting Experts will be at the Southern Hotel, Mansfield, Ohio, to give free demonstrations and private trial fittings of a Support designed to comfortably hold any reducible rupture —large or small—no matter where located or what your work may be.

Backed by more than 50 years' experience and fitted by Experts with a thorough knowledge of what they are doing, the Modern Rice Support should prove to be a revelation to the most skeptical—and you are allowed a 30-day trial period to see if this is so. No binding, cutting or chafing, but a comfortable, evenly directed pressure at just the right spot to keep bowel from escaping.

Thousands have reported entire satisfaction with the Rice Support, so why endure the burden of reducible rupture suffering if you can be free from it? Anyway, it will cost you nothing to come in and learn about Rice methods and the wonderful opportunity it offers. Just ask at the hotel desk for the Rice Experts and they will do the rest. Hours 10 to 12 A. M., 2 to 5 P. M. or 7 to 9 evenings. There is absolutely no obligation and you are promised friendly, courteous treatment.

DR. F. M. EDWARDS' DISCOVERY FOR CONSTIPATION

Benefits Nation of Sufferers!

COLUMBUS, OHIO: For over 20 years Dr. F. M. Edwards (widely known physician) successfully treated scores of patients for constipation and the headaches, lack of energy and mental dullness which often result.

This wise Doctor knew liver bile must flow freely every day into your intestines or fatty foods can't be properly digested and you may become constipated. So he kept this in mind when he perfected his famous Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

Olive Tablets, being purely vegetable, are wonderful, yet they assure gentle, thorough bowel movements and ALSO help stimulate bile flow. Test their goodness TONIGHT! 15c, 30c, 60c.

Chapter Workers to Campaign For 10,500 Memberships In County.

Next Monday Mansfield and all Richland county will roll up its sleeves and start the task of raising a minimum of 10,500 members for the Richland County Chapter of Red Cross in the annual Roll Call which opens Nov. 11 and runs through Nov. 30.

Plans for the 24th annual Roll Call were announced today by John Finefrock, general chairman of the chapter which leads all of Ohio, including the largest cities, in per capita memberships. The local chapter has been the leading Red Cross unit in the state for the past seven years.

L. W. Birch has been named Roll Call chairman for the second consecutive year. He will direct a large staff of sub-chairmen and about 500 district and precinct workers.

Robert Black, plumbing supplies salesman, will assist Mr. Birch as vice chairman of the membership enrollment. Austin C. Rhoads heads the important industries division, and Mrs. Frank H. Maxwell is chairman of the city wards. Other subchairmen are C. H. Saylor, who heads the national business concerns division; and Leland T. Powell, chairman of townships outside of Mansfield and Shelby.

Shelby, as usual, will stage its own drive for members with Gerald Dennis as general chairman, and Leo A. McGaw, as his vice chairman.

The drive will open officially Monday evening when the annual Roll Call dinner is held at Senior high school cafeteria. More than 150 city and county workers are expected to attend. Reservation cards were mailed to workers yesterday. Mrs. Lous Ott is in charge of plans for the dinner. Instructions for Roll Call workers will be given out at that meeting.

No Quotas Set.

Finefrock said today that no quotas are being set by national headquarters but that the minimum membership figure for Richland county is 10,500. The adult membership this year is 10,720, which was 720 over last year's goal.

It will require the minimum figure, Finefrock said, to keep up the work and the services which are being carried on in the county at the present time by the Red Cross and to meet the chapter's share on the national obligations.

Roll Call headquarters have been established at 703 Farmers bank building, with Mrs. George Draffan in charge for the duration of the Roll Call. The room has been donated to the Red Cross. Workers may call there for Roll Call supplies.

One of the special features this year will be recognition of members who have been on the chapter roster for 10 consecutive years and 10-year membership buttons will be given to them instead of the regular annual Roll Call buttons.

Red Cross memberships range in classification from $1 to $25 per year, with 50 cents out of each membership going to national organization for its disaster relief work. If a member gives $3, Finefrock explained, 50 cents of it goes to national and $2.50 remains in Richland county. Of the $25 memberships, $24.50 stays in the county.

There is a life patron membership at $100 and Mansfield has three of them. They are: Mrs. Charles Williams, Stewart avenue, her granddaughter, Mrs. James Eberly, West Townview circle, formerly Jane Brucker; and Henry Hurxthal, now living in Washington, D. C. The late Henry L. Goemann, whose death occurred last week, was also a life patron member of the Red Cross.

A national radio broadcast on three networks Sunday at 1:30 p. m. will tell the story of the Red Cross to the nation. Catherine Cornell, distinguished American stage actress, will make her first radio appearance on it, forsaking her stand against radio work for the first time in the interests of the Red Cross.

A series of township meetings are being held this week for Roll Call workers. Two held last night were for Franklin township workers at the home of their chairman, Mrs. Charles Raiser, Route 178, and for workers of Weller township at the home of Mrs. Margery Burkholder, Pavonia.

Cass township workers will meet at 7:30 p. m. Friday at the home of Mrs. Dewey Reynolds, Route 178.

A staff of almost 500 volunteer workers, under the direction of the leaders shown above, will offer every person in Mansfield and Richland county an opportunity this month to enroll under the Red Cross banner. The annual Roll Call opens Monday and ends Nov. 30, with a minimum of 10,500 memberships set up as a goal.

DIVIDEND ON 90-CENT FIND PAID MOTHER

Addition to Social Security Record Meant Several Thousand Dollars.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—A young Maryland widow and her four small children are today thanking the Social Security Board for finding 90 cents and turning it into several thousand dollars.

When Thomas Bruce Holland died last January, his social security work record was 90 cents short of the minimum needed to qualify his family for a survivors' pension. The young widow recalled that two companies for which her husband had worked were not listed on Social Security's records, and then began the biggest search of an individual's work record ever undertaken by the federal agency.

Twenty clerks and accountants went to work to find the two employers. One company, they found, had gone bankrupt. The other couldn't be traced. But one day in Baltimore, Social Security agents found a former employe who remembered that the second company—an ice cream distributor—had Connecticut headquarters.

Through seven cities in Connecticut and New Jersey, Social Security officers followed the trail of the former employer. And they found him. He denied ever having hired Thomas Holland. But Social Security produced a former employe who declared he had. In the face of the evidence, the employer gave in. His books showed that Thomas Holland was credited with not 90 cents, but $5. The employer had thought it "too trivial" to mention.

Mrs. Holland, who now works in a beauty parlor here, and her children—Mary Jo, 9; Bruce, 7; Neva, 6, and Margaret, 4—will get several thousand dollars in pensions from the S.S.B. before Margaret is 18.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Do look now, for the Capital-A actor is coming into his own again.

Before long, it ought to be possible for a player to Capital-A act without being accused of cutting himself a slice of ham.

Hollywood, in its informal moments, bandies the term "ham" freely about. As you hear it, some of our best names and friends are "just hams."

That went for John Carradine, the character actor, too. Fredric March, who got an academy Oscar himself once, was branded with the pork for virtually every picture. Lionel Barrymore, beloved by the fans, often was described (with admiration) as a peerless "scenery-chewer."

What never was made clear, of course, was where acting ended and "hamming" began.

* * *

But all that ought to change now. Maybe it's the "western" influence, suggesting freedom, the outdoors—and beef rather than pork. Maybe it's the accumulated influence of all those players—Bette Davis and Muni and March and the rest—who take a part and aren't afraid to rassle with it.

Not so long ago the school of "restraint" was tops. Say the hero walked in and found his sweetheart butchered by the heavy! He just stared and lit a cigaret and stared some more. It was a cardinal sin against "restraint" to portray emotion as ordinary folks do—by yelling out loud, tearing and stamping, or slugging somebody. Everything was as genteel as Leslie Howard.

There's still "restraint," thanks be, in Capital-A acting. Bette Davis in "The Letter" has a terrific part, but you won't see her failing to relax when the scene calls for quietude. Charles Laughton, like most Englishmen, can "out-restrain" anybody but in "They Knew What They Wanted" you don't catch him staring, just staring, when he finds his best friend done him wrong. No, sir, he jumps up and down and pummels the tar out of the snake—and I haven't heard it called "hamming" to date.

Muni, in "Hudson's Bay," has a vigorous dialect role—complete with beard. Ian Hunter, long a sufferer in silence, a lover unrequited, a martyr to restraint, gives with some tense dramatics in "The Long Voyage Home." And the ham-hounds haven't yet picked up the trail of either.

I asked John Barrymore, the greatest self-admitted "ham," about all this and John seemed to sigh a little. He thought, he said, the screen never had allowed the "ham" (which is in all actors) full sway.

"On the stage," he said, "an actor must exaggerate to get himself across to his audience. On the screen—well, the first time I saw myself in a test I hurried to the nearest bar. You can't really ham it in a picture."

Coming from John, that ought to give the Capital-A actors a blank check. If the greatest "ham" says movie-hamming is impossible, they can really let themselves go!

Because Children Went To School Blitzie Leaves Zoo

NEWTON, Mass.—(INS)—Lonesomeness—because children had returned to school and no longer visited Norumbega park, in Auburndale, was given as a reason for Blitzie's escape from the park zoo.

Blitzie is a fat little bear cub, ordinarily caged at the zoo. It escaped by scaling the bars of the cage for a distance of five feet after breaking its chain. At the top of the cage the space between the bars is not as close as at the bottom.

The cub managed to squeeze through this space and once loose wandered throughout Auburndale and Newton, causing a serious traffic jam. It apparently liked the sound of automobile horns because it wasn't until police silenced the horns of the automobiles that the bear could be led back to its cage.

REALLY GOOD

Parents Discover Food In Army's All Right.

FORT DIX, N. J.—(INS)—Army food is all right.

That was the unanimous opinion of mothers, fathers, and sisters of some of 12,000 New York and New Jersey troops of the 44th division after sampling the food first hand.

With borrowed mess kits, many visitors to the camp stood in line before the mess halls and got their Sunday night supper cafeteria style.

When the mothers saw and tasted the cold cuts, cheese, olives, pickles, jellies, potato salad, cole slaw, sliced tomatoes and iced tea, they agreed it was quite fine.

MARGARET ROWLAND GIVES CLINIC REVIEW

Presents Study of "The Family" By Nina Fedorova; Dorothy Fuldheim Scheduled for Final Program Nov. 27.

CHARM and brilliance rather than debilitating fear was expressed by the novel, "The Family" by Nina Fedorova, which Margaret Rowland, Cleveland, reviewed yesterday afternoon before a dental clinic audience which nearly filled the main auditorium of the Ohio theater. As the name implies, the book deals with the fortunes and misfortunes of a family unit.

In it the writer, herself a White Russian, tells of the fate of a group of White Russians who escape from Russia and find themselves in Tientsin in 1937. Included are Granny, Mother, Lida and two nephews, and this quintet opens a boarding house.

In the course of events a great variety of persons come to the boarding house, and the influence of each of them upon the family was skillfully shown in the book and relayed by the reviewer.

The book, more a series of characterizations than a novel, deals entertainingly and poignantly with the events of recent years in the Far East and Europe.

For the final program of the year Dorothy Fulheim will review "For Whom the Bell Tolls" by Ernest Hemingway. This program will be presented at 1 p. m. Nov. 27 with the current movie attraction under the auspices of the clinic. Tickets for the final event may be obtained at the Book shop. Proceeds of the sale of these tickets are used to provide dental care for indigent children.

Mrs. Culp Recent Bride Honored

Mrs. W. H. Culp was entertained with a post-nuptial party yesterday evening at the home of Mrs. George Bender, 559 Heineman boulevard. Mrs. Earl Herrick, Mrs. Russell Doehla and Mrs. Colison Holmes, were the hostess's associates, all being sisters of the honoree in Delta chapter of Gamma Gamma Gamma sorority.

The guests were other members of the sorority chapter, and they played bridge during the evening. Prizes were won by Miss Bettie Myers and Mrs. Eugene Earick, who presented them to the honoree. The affair was a dessert-party, and the dessert course was served at small tables preceding the bridge games.

Mrs. Culp, who was Miss Betty Goddard before her marriage on Oct. 6, received a shower of kitchenware gifts from the guests. The hostesses gave her an electrical gift in honor of the occasion.

Morning Service Read Yesterday At Church Altar

Members of the immediate families and a few close friends witnessed the quiet wedding service of Miss Phyllis Chorpening of Ashland and George Burgess, Park avenue west, which was solemnized yesterday at 9 o'clock at the parsonage of the St. Peter's Catholic church. Rev. Fr. James Dwyer officiated for the sinble ring service.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Chorpening of Ashland, wore a soldier blue velvet street length dress with matching accessories. Her bouquet was of red roses and a white gardenia, tied with soldier blue ribbons.

Miss Rose Huck, who attended the bride, wore a black velvet dress with matching accessories. Her flowers were Talisman roses and a gardenia, tied with yellow streamers. Ralph Bishop served as best man for Mr. Burgess.

Following the ceremony the group motored to Ashland where a wedding breakfast was served at Pelat's with places laid for 14. Later in the day the couple left for a trip to Cleveland. Until the first of the new year they will reside on Park avenue west.

Mr. Burgess is the son of Mrs. Katherine Burgess, Maple street. He was graduated from the Mansfield Senior high school and is employed at the Swan Dry Cleaners. Mrs. Burgess was graduated from Ashland high school.

Bowman Mothers Arrange Dinner

There were 51 members of the Bowman street school Mothers' club present for a meeting at the school yesterday afternoon. During the business session, the group formulated plans for a covered-dish dinner, Christmas program and gift exchange to be held in the pavilion at John's park on Dec. 4. Mrs. C. J. Baumberger will be the general chairman at that time, and Mrs. Thomas Reader will plan the program.

Mrs. Katherine Armstrong was in charge of yesterday's program, at which time Shirley Worman gave a tap dance and played several guitar selections. Miss Frances Brinkerhoff's room won the attendance prize, and Mrs. Lloyd Howell also won an award. Mrs. Armstrong and her committee served refreshments at the close of the afternoon.

A group of the members will attend a demonstration at the Ohio Public Service on Nov. 13, and the Mothersingers will meet for rehearsal at the school on Nov. 14.

Woodville Mothers Hold Regular Meet

Forty-three members of the Woodville Mothers club met at the school Wednesday afternoon for a regular session. They surprised Mrs. R. R. Ross with a shower of miscellaneous gifts.

Mrs. C. W. Frickman conducted the devotions. The room prize for having the largest number of mothers present went to Mr. Robinson's room. During the social hour a guessing contest was held with the prizes being awarded to Mrs. Anton Betz. Refreshments were served later by Mrs. A. C. Hunter and her committee. The next meeting will be held Dec. 4 at the school.

STUDY CLUBS CONDUCT VARIETY OF SESSIONS

Louis Bromfield, Isabel Barry Guest Speakers at Meetings; Members Present Number of Programs.

LOUIS BROMFIELD was the guest speaker Wednesday afternoon at the meeting of the Wednesday Study club which was held at the home of Mrs. George Draffan, Millsborough road. He told the group about "Writers and How Books Happen to Be Written." In his review of many prominent writers he gave facts concerning their works and their styles of writing.

Guests for the meeting were Mrs. Bromfield, Mrs. Ruth Grim and Mrs. Alice Statler. Following Mr. Bromfield's talk an informal discussion was held on his subject.

Later tea was served from a dainty table which was decorated with two china wild ducks and many shades of fall mums. Mrs. Alan Tappan presided at the table.

The next meeting will be held Nov. 26 when members of the Tuesday Book club meet with the Wednesday Study club to hear Mrs. May Pyle Andrews of Ashland college, who will be the guest speaker. Mrs. Donald Black, Marion avenue road, will be hostess at her home, assisted by Mrs. Wesley Carr, Mrs. Charles Conklin and Mrs. Alfred Reynolds.

Members of the Journey club were the guests of Mrs. L. A. Ott at the Women's Club yesterday when Mrs. C. H. Hughes and Mrs. Anna Miller gave the current events. "Folly Island" by Warwick Deeping was reviewed by Mrs. O. C. McCormick. Mrs. G. E. Holland presided at the tea table. The next meeting will be held Nov. 20 with Mrs. W. J. Althouse in charge.

* * *

The only guest at the luncheon meeting of the Nomad club at which Mrs. Charles H. Keating entertained yesterday at the Women's Club was Mrs. Louis J. Ott. The program on John Masefield was presented by Mrs. Edward Gibson, jr.

She presented her discussion by contrasting the writer with other poets. She read "Nov. 6," a poem by Masefield, in connection with her paper, and told of the retiring personality of the poet laureat. The next meeting will be held Nov. 20 with Mrs. Philip Corey as hostess.

"New England" was the topic of the paper presented by Mrs. John Bissman last night when she assisted Mrs. Ivor Balyeat in entertaining the Student club at her home in the Zediker apartments. Three new members, Mrs. Jack Berno, Mrs. William Reister and Mrs. Robert Gordon were welcomed into membership.

Refreshments were served buffet style from a table centered with Thanksgiving decorations and lighted tapers. Mrs. Reister poured. The next meeting will be held Nov. 27 with Mrs. F. W. Forkner and Mrs. K. R. Cartnal. Mrs. Forkner was appointed secretary to replace Mrs. Dale T. Balph who is inactive this year.

* * *

Another guest speaker in Mansfield yesterday was Miss Isabel Barry who spoke on "Modernizing Our Present Home" before members of the Mansfield Junior Sorosis at the home of Mrs. Andrew Mott, Washington avenue.

She illsustrted her talk with slides and decorative materials. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening. The next meeting will be held Nov. 20 with Miss Florence White, Columbus avenue. Mrs. Eugene Linham will have the program.

Mother, Mix Your Own Cough Remedy. It's Fine.
Quick, Comforting Relief. Saves Money. Easily Mixed.
This well-known home-mixed medicine costs very little, but it gives delightful, swift-acting relief from coughs due to colds. It takes but a moment to prepare—it's so easy a child could do it. And it saves real money.
Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed.
Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This you make a full pint of really splendid cough remedy and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time and children love its taste.
And for quick, blessed relief, you'll say it is truly wonderful. It has a remarkable action. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages.
Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Shell Fish Newburg Tasty

By BETSY NEWMAN

A few cans of fish on the pantry shelf is often the answer to the housewife's sometimes weary query, what shall I serve today? It would take the business or club woman but a few moments to make the shell fish a la Newburgh suggested in today's recipes, with a can of shrimps, lobsters, crab meat, etc., on hand.

Today's Menu.

Shell Fish a la Newburg
Toast
Baked Stuffed Potatoes
Cabbage
Olives Pickles
Steamed Chocolate Pudding
Whipped Cream Coffee

Shell Fish a la Newburgh.

2 cups finely cut shrimp, scallops, lobster or crab meat
2 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup milk
2 hard boiled eggs
1 teaspoon salt
Cayenne pepper to taste
¼ teaspoon paprika.

If canned fish is used, cover with cold water for 20 minutes and drain. Melt butter in saucepan, add flour and stir until smooth, then add cold milk slowly, stirring to keep smooth. Boil until thick. Rub egg yolks through strainer and add, stirring until smooth; add seasoning and finely chopped egg whites, then add fish. Put all in top of double boiler over fire for 15 minutes; add 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, and serve over toast.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, Nov. 8.

Judging by the weak positions of the ruling planets this may be a day of routine events with matters moving in customary grooves. In these there may be fair success, with promise of expansion, progress and rather pleasant personal relations. It is probable that social, friendly or sympathetic understanding may dominate or influence business decisions.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which matters may move along in moderate grooves for successful approach to not too exalted ambitions. This happy state of affairs may be assisted by the support and friendly understanding of social or cultural comrades.

A child born on this day may be fairly ambitious, making a moderate success by its efficiency, expansive ideas and humanitarian and friendly impulses.

GLASS ATTRACTIVE

The more than 7,000,000,000 glass containers sent to market every year in the United States would have amazed ancient Rome where glass was held more precious than gold. Modern American manufacturing methods have made glass containers as common as paper bags, and economical to use. Lightness, durability and convenience for handling are other salient qualities that American glassmakers have successfully incorporated in their wares.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

For minutes that seemed an eternity, after the blow that so patently had knocked Avis Arlen unconscious, there hung over the farmhouse a silence that not even the sound of a deep breath disturbed.

Then down the stairs the gangsters came silently, while we, shivering behind our doorway, watched them, and we heard Leslie's voice in muted tones:

"Remember, get the woman, Veritzen, her husband, and the old man. We'll make him tell where the emeralds are — and a few other thing, before we rub him out. We'll take the queen, too; no, she's only an ex—don't bother with her. And shoot anybody, man, woman or child, that gets in your way. Say! Doesn't this dame make a good shield?"

He was coming down the stairs now, and though we could not see his eyes, there was insanity in every word, every gesture. He presented a most macabre picture, with the senseless, slight figure of Avis Arlen slung over his shoulder in such fashion that she shielded his chest. In one hand he held a revolver, in the other a queer-looking sphere at the sight of which Lillian caught my arm.

"What in—!" she breathed, brokenly.

Then I heard my father's steady voice speaking from some hiding place near the stairway.

"You are surrounded and outnumbered, Leslie. The men hidden here, and the men in the attic behind you, are more than enough to deal with your entire gang. We have known of your secret entrance for weeks, and prepared ourselves accordingly. If you want to avoid needless bloodshed, surrender now, and tell your men to do the same thing!"

As my father finished speaking, I saw Leslie raise his revolver and bring it in front of his face with a queer gesture almost as if he were going to fire in the air. Then he callously dropped Avis Arlen from his shoulder as if she were a bundle of old clothes. I heard her body strike the step and shuddered, but could not take my eyes from Leslie's maddened face.

"All right, old timer," he answered. "These other babies can do as they wish. I'm on my way to the other side myself, but I'm going to take somebody with me first."

He raised his revolver, and lifted the other hand with a spherical object in it.

"Come on out, you cowards," he said. "And as for you rats"—he addressed his own men — "you aren't worth shooting, you white-livered skunks."

"Go, men!" my father said, "but watch him!"

As Lillian and I expected, the first men to bound from their dark hiding places were Dicky, Harry and Noel. But the guards were only a split second behind them and disarmed Leslie's men with no trouble whatever.

"You're the somebody I want, Noel,' Leslie said, laughing maniacally. "Glad to meet you again."

Dicky's Heroism.

He discharged his revolver directly at Noel, but his arm was shaking—from rage, I imagined—and he missed his target. With an oath he tossed the revolver to the floor, and threw the hand grenade directly at the man he had so sorely injured, and whom he hated so vindictively.

Before even an involuntary scream could come from my lips, Dicky, beside Noel, fairly leaped into the air and caught the grenade lightly between his palms, just as Harry Underwood and a guard bore Leslie to the ground.

"Gangway!" Dicky said and gently lowered the missile into one of the tubs of water which my father's forethought had provided against the possible setting fire to the house. Then he turned back with an imperturbable face which became alive and agitated as his eyes met mine.

For when Leslie had hurled that hand grenade at Noel, and Dicky had caught it, all self-control left Mary and me. We both made a dash for the open corridor, and while Mary fairly hurled herself toward Noel, and with her arms around his neck, sobbed out her terror and her relief, I moved toward my husband more slowly, fearing that he would repulse me, yet unable to keep from his side in this moment of unutterable relief that his bizarre act of heroism had not blotted out his life.

"Dicky, won't you forgive me?" I pleaded as I reached his side.

For a second his eyes were icy. Then they softened, although they were still shadowed from the wound I had given him. But he put his arms about me, and drew me close as he whispered: "Listen!"

"The tried and true sweethearts!" he snarled. "And you win, though, on second thought, perhaps, my beauties, you lose, for you'll have something to remember, even if I'm not here, I shan't be here to know. When the old bird crowed, I knew the game was up, and I passed in my checks right then and there, on one of the tickets I've always carried with me. It isn't going to be a pretty death, or an easy one, but I didn't want the quickest way, for I wanted to take you with me. However, it won't be but a few minutes at best. And you'll never know—and always wonder—just how much of what I'm going to spill is true. We have our own memories, eh? Mary, my darling. Nothing can rob me of—oh—!"

Harry Underwood lifted his hand as Noel dashed furiously toward Leslie.

"He's a dying man," he said, as Leslie's body twisted in a horrible paroxysm.

Noel stopped short, and then swept Mary from Lillian's arms. Lillian had caught her as she was slipping to the floor under the awful import of Leslie's vicious words.

"Dying or not," Noel shouted, "here's your answer, Jack. Take this with you to hell. There will never be any doubt of my wife's truth in my soul."

He bent to Mary, and pressed a long kiss upon her lips, and then Philip Veritzen spoke.

"Bring her in here, my boy, and let me help you care for her," he said, and his voice was infinitely tender and loving.

Noel started violently. Then with his arm encircling his wife, he went slowly to his father, who drew them both inside the room, and shut the door. With passionate thankfulness, I realized that at last Philip Veritzen's prejudices had vanished, and that the storm-tossed craft of Noel and Mary was safely in harbor.

What was in store for my own marital ship I did not know. But there was no time to think of anything in the next minute or two except the awful paroxysms of dying Jack Leslie. Mercifully, it was but a short time before the spasms ceased, and his lifeless form lay stretched upon the floor.

"God blasted the lie upon his lips," Lillian whispered when the end came. She was bending over Avis Arlen with me, trying to revive her. Our husbands were close behind us, lending what aid they could, while my father engineered the exodus, under strong guard, of the thoroughly cowed gangsters and the removal of Leslie's body.

"No use bringing her to until that rat's body is gone," Harry said. "Poor little fool, she probably has had her lesson. No use rubbing it in with horror."

A Penitent Girl.

Fortunately Leslie's blow had not injured Avis seriously, and under Catherine's care, she came back to consciousness a thoroughly frightened and penitent girl.

It was daylight before the house settled down to quiet, and my father gave us a message that was like a draught of ice water to a fever patient.

"Go to bed and sleep soundly," he told us. "That's what I'm going to do. There's no more need of guards around the farmhouse. We're back to prosaic living again, thank God!"

But I could not obey his injunction. Sleep was far from my eyes, and I went out to the front veranda to watch the dawn. It was there that Dicky found me—I had secretly hoped he would—and put his arms tightly around me.

"You asked me to forgive you," he said thickly, "when it is I who should beg your mercy on my knees. If you only had let me tell you that sordid story when I wished, perhaps—"

I put up my hand and closed his lips tightly.

"Let us never speak of it again," I said. "I know that whatever you did was the result of an evil trick upon the part of those gangsters. Edith has said enough to let me know—although I did not need her telling—I know without her word—that you were innocent, and that you have been true to me. And after that first cruel moment, when I seemed frozen and could not move, I was wild to tell you of my love and faith. I called to you, but you did not hear me."

"But we're together now," he said softly as the first rays of the rising sun touched us.

"Oh! look! sweetheart, the sun!" I exclaimed. "It is a precious augury for us."

The drawing light fell upon our faces in tender promise as my husband drew me closer.

"My own girl!" he said huskily, and pressed his lips down on mine.

(END of "Marriage Meddlers")

(Beginning tomorrow a new episode in the lives of Madge and Dickie entitled "Pitfalls of Love" will appear on this page. The story, the 17th part of the novel by Adele Garrison, will treat of the same characters as have figured in this novel during the past quarter century.)

The Authority on Authorities

A SMALL SLAM PLAY

There is just one kind of play which is of value in making a small slam contract, but utterly worthless for grand slam purposes. That is a lead-throwing end-play. Since it involves giving the defenders a trick so that they must lead back what you wish, the very use of it would defeat a grand slam contract at once. But many a small slam would be impossible without use of this device, especially when of finesse or finesses may be marked as probably destined to fail.

After West led his heart 4, South could count up only eleven tricks unless the heart J could win or one of the minor finesses would work. So he played the heart J and East covered with the Q, the K winning. Then came seven spade tricks and the heart A, South discarding so as to leave both minor tenaces intact. When West discarded so that he had to put his heart 10 on the A, South realized West was holding on to his minor suit cards, four of them.

There would have been no point in West's doing this, the declarer figured, unless he was trying to guard an honor in each of the minor suits. If the declarer had now finessed one of those suits, West would have won, could have returned the suit, and there would have been a loser then in the other suit. But he didn't do that. He played to the club A, then led the club Q to the marked K in West's hand. The latter had nothing to return but a diamond, so the A and Q of that suit took the last two tricks.

Democrats Gain In Ohio Legislature, Other Offices

REPUBLICANS STILL BOAST OF MAJORITY

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—John W. Bricker, although swept back to office on the crest of the greatest plurality ever given a governor in Ohio, will have little more than a Republican working majority in the new general assembly.

Complete unofficial returns from Tuesday's election showed today strong Democratic recoveries in both branches of the legislature. In the senate, the Republicans saved 20 seats, while the Democrats took 16. The old chamber favored the Republicans 27 to 8. The Republicans won 78 house seats, compared with 100 they held in the 1939-40 assembly, while the Democrats rose from 36 to 60.

Automatic reapportionment hiked the senate membership one to 36, and the house from 136 to 138.

While the Republicans maintained their working majority, it appeared that Democratic gains would deprive the administration leadership of sufficient strength for passage of emergency legislation, which needs 24 senate votes, or suspension of the rules.

Mayor Harold H. Burton captured Ohio's second senatorship for the Republicans handily over John McSweeney of Wooster, but his victory was in no sense as tremendous as Bricker's. With 129 Hamilton precincts out, Burton had 1,560,699, McSweeney 1,432,409—a lead of 128,290.

Democrats, who campaigned chiefly on New Deal principles, unseated four Republicans to gain 12 positions in congress, the same number Republicans now hold. Stephen M. Young (D), who left congress in 1936 to run unsuccessfully for governor, defeated L. L. Marshall (R) for one of Ohio's two at-large congress seats. George H. Bender, Cleveland Republican leader, retained the other at-large seat by defeating Francis Durbin, Lima Democrat.

Two Democrats won state offices. Joseph T. Ferguson whipped Republican Joseph T. Tracy to retain his position as auditor, while John E. Sweeney beat Republican Edward J. Hummel for secretary of state.

Incumbent Republican state office holders who won re-election were Lieut. Gov. Paul M. Herbert, Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert, and Treasurer Don Ebright.

Arthur M. Day, who "broke" with the Republican organization by endorsing Democrat Robert J. Bulkley for U. S. senator in 1938, lost his race as an independent for re-election to the Ohio supreme court term beginning Jan. 2. On the basis of nearly 8,000 precincts, he trailed Gilbert Bettman (R) of Cincinnati by a wide margin. Judge MacBride (D) was third.

For the supreme court term beginning Jan. 1, Charles B. Zimmerman (D) was re-elected over Clinton D. Boyd. Edward C. Turner, Republican incumbent, was named to fill a two-year vacancy created by the death of George S. Myers, a Democrat.

Davey's defeat marked the worst showing in the tree surgeon's colorful political career—in which he sought the governorship five times and won it twice.

Bricker's huge plurality apparently was helped along by separation of state and national ballots, which the legislature approved at the governor's behest.

Jeanette Rankin Back In Congress After Many Years

MISSOULA, Mont.—(INS)—Miss Jeanette Rankin of Missoula was back in the political spotlight today after 22 years of oblivion, as she regained the place in the U. S. house of representatives she held from 1916 to 1918 as the first woman ever elected to that body.

Her election in 1916—back in suffragette days—was something of a nation-wide sensation. Her re-election this year on the Republican ticket was accomplished over an opponent who, as a former Montana representative, gained a measure of fame himself. He is Jerry O'Connell of Butte, who was the youngest congressman in the nation during his tenure of office from 1936 to 1938.

SEVEN KILLED

PIPESTONE, Minn. — (U.P.) — Seven persons were dead and two others were in critical condition today because of a collision between an automobile, carrying a funeral party, and a truck at an intersection only 20 miles from the scene of the nation's worst automobile crash last April in which 12 youths were killed.

It isn't often that a motorist has a serious accident and practically lands in the arms of physicians and a dentist. But that was what happened to LeRoy Bletz, R. D. 1 Crestline, who is seriously injured at General hospital. Bletz, according to the highway patrol, went to sleep in his car election night struck a culvert, the car hurtled over an embankment and he managed to get out of the wreck. His jaw was fractured, several teeth knocked out, and he was bleeding from a throat laceration. When he finally succeeded in stopping a car it contained four Mansfield doctors on their way home from a meetng. One of them Dr. L. B. McCullough, had just been elected county coroner. The others were Dr. R. H. Frey, Dr. Leonard Hautzenroeder and Dr. Howard B. Peck.

Highway patrolmen were kidding D. H. Cole, one of their brother patrolmen, today for passing up what they think was the chance of a lifetime. For a number of years Cole has held a second lieutenant's commission in the quartermaster's corps of the United States army. But during the past few years Cole let his commission expire because he did not keep up with the studying that is required of reserve officers. Now Cole, much to his chagrin, has to take his chances with the draft and enter the army as a private.

Note to election board officials: When Mrs. W. C. Mansfield, 47 Sturges avenue, went to her voting precinct—I-B—to cast her vote Tuesday, she was handed the ballots and stepped behind the curtain. But she discovered that the presidential ballot had already been marked for President Roosevelt. She asked for a new one and it was given to her. There seems to be a mystery as to where the ballot came from.

These frosty nights are supposed to make the hunting good for Richland countians who like to go into the woods for nuts, but the crop of hickory nuts in the county is said to be one of the smallest in recent years. Walnuts are numerous, however, and many bushels of them have been brought to Mansfield. In some sections of the county, the ground under beach trees is littered with nut shells, but they are empty, indicating that weather conditions during the past summer hampered the development of the nuts.

PLAN SERVICE

War Vets To Attend Armistice Day Program Sunday.

Annual Armistice Sunday services will be held at First Lutheran church at 7:30 p. m. Sunday with Legionnaires in charge of arrangements, it was announced today by Post Commander M. Earl Saltzgaber.

The patriotic religious service has become an annual custom, he said, and last year attracted more than 1,500 persons. It is especially observed by patriotic and veterans organizations of the city. Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, chaplain of McVey Post, will deliver the sermon on the subject "By Way of Sacrifice."

Music for the occasion will be given by a choir of 100 voices directed by Legionnaire James T. Weber, superintendent of music at Madison township high school, and director of First Methodist choir. The choir will meet for rehearsals at 8:30 p. m. today at the church.

Veterans will attend the services in uniform, Saltzgaber said. Arrangements for the service are being worked out by Wilbur C. Hegnauer and Rev. Swoyer.

NAZIS RATION APPLE SUPPLY

Fruit Shortage In Europe Reported; Canadian Crops Low.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The agricultural department reported today the German government had requisitioned all supplies of 1940 apples because of fruit shortage and would regulate their distribution.

The requisition, applied through the central marketing association of the German horticultural industry, affects not only German-produced apples but also those imported from Danubian and Balkan producing areas.

The office of foregin agricultural relations said the long, hard winter of 1939-40 damaged fruit trees in continental Europe seriously and there was little prospect of making up the deficiency of fruit supplies.

Heretofore fruits have not been rationed, with the result that consumption has increased as a partial offset to rationed foods.

The department also estimated exports of Canadian apples to the United States for the rest of the season at 250,000 bushels.

This would bring up the season's total of 650,000 bushels, "or considerably less than has been anticipated in certain quarters," the department said.

Most of the exports, the department said, would be Jonathans, since there was a considerable demand for other varieties in Canada. It was likely, the department added, that Canada would import winesaps from this country.

The department characterized as incorrect a "widespread impression that the Canadian government is subsidizing apple exports to the United States."

BRICKER MAJORITY BOOSTED TO 359,633 OVER OPPONENT

Mayor Harold Burton, of Cleveland, a Republican, in being elected U. S. senator over former Congressman John McSweeney, Wooster Democrat, carried the state by a 147,665 majority. The vote:

78 PRECINCTS STILL OUT FOR GOVERNOR RACE

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Vote totals pointed today a possible net Republican gain of one governorship as late tabulations of Tuesday's record balloting showed a shift in party control of ten state administrations, with only two of 33 gubernatorial races still in doubt.

Republicans marked up five victories in previous Democratic territory — Delaware, Illinois, Missouri, Montana and Nebraska in electing 14 governors Tuesday. They also won in Maine in September to bring this year's total of 15.

In addition, a Democrat, William H. Burke, appeared to have unseated Gov. Payne H. Ratner, Kansas Republican, although an official canvass of the vote was needed to determine the winner.

In Washington Arthur B. Langlie, Republican, had a lead of 3,622 votes over former Senator Clarence C. Dill, Democrat, formerly of Fredericktown, O., but 78 precincts were still to be heard from and three were an estimated 23,000 absentee votes to be counted next week. Previously, the state had a Democratic administration."

Georgia—Eugene Talmadge.
Tennessee—Prentice Cooper.
Arkansas—Homer M. Adkins.
Connecticut—Robert A. Hurley.
West Virginia—Matthew M. Neely.
North Carolina—Joseph M Broughton.
Rhode Island—J. Howard McGrath.
Florida—Spessard L. Holland.
Texas—W. Lee O'Daniel.
New Jersey—Charles Edison
Michigan—Murray D. Van Wagoner.
North Dakota—John Moses
Arizona—Sidney P. Osborn.
New Mexico—John E. Miles.
Idaho—Chase A. Clark.
Utah—Herbert B. Maw.
Indiana—Henry F. Schricker.

Maine (Sept.)—Sumner Sewall.
Vermont—William H. Wills
Illinois—Dwight H. Green.
Iowa—George A. Wilson.
South Dakota—Harlan J. Bushfield.
Ohio—John W. Bricker.
Nebraska—Dwight Griswold.
New Hampshire—Robert O. Blood.
Minnesota—Harold E. Stassen.
Massachusetts—Leverett Saltonstall.
Wisconsin—Julius P. Heil.
Delaware—Walter W. Bacon.
Colorado—Ralph Carr.
Missouri—Forrest C. Donnell.
Montana—Sam C. Ford.

DIES AT AGE 63

Mrs. Nettie May Kornoely Was Native of Mansfield.

Mrs. Nettie May Kornoely, 63, of 240 Clairmont avenue, died Thursday morning at General hospital following a brief illness. Mrs. Kornoely was born in Mansfield April 9, 1877, and spent her entire life here.

She was a member of the First Christian church, Sons of Union Veterans auxiliary, and Daughters of Union Veterans.

Surviving are her husband, Ralph Kornoely and two nieces, Mrs. F. M. Brannon and Mrs. E. P. Cook, all of Mansfield.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Saturday at the Finefrock funeral home in charge of Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger of the First Christian church. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

THREE FACING FRAUD CHARGES

BUCYRUS — Three men who gave their address as California were being held today in city jail on charges of fraud. They are Albert L. Johnson, 36, Larry Wiseman, 27, and Solly Gorden, 33, who were arrested by Marion city police as they entered there Wednesday afternoon, following a tip from the Bucyrus police.

The three approached several persons on the Bucyrus streets Wednesday asking for $15 which they said was to be used as money for a security bond, and giving a watch, later valued at $5, as security. Two men were victimized by the trio.

4 IN CONTEST

Give Prince of Peace Declamations at Shiloh Church.

Four members of the Shiloh high school will give Prince of Peace declamations Sunday in the Shiloh Methodist church at 7:30 p. m.

Those taking part are: Lucille Genney, Marcella Clark, Betty Miller and Alfred Laser. Following the declamations, several musical numbers will be offered by members of the church.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

You Meet Such Interesting People.
(And It's the Little Things You Remember.)

Arthur Treacher, who will probably never escape being cast as a butler, must have his afternoon tea when afternoon comes, and on days when there are matinees of "Panama Hattie" he sips his oolong standing in the wings.

Grace Hartman, the madcap dancer, sleeps with her feet encased in honey-filled socklets—honestly! She once went to a dancing school where the teacher advocated it for all the girls, and she still has the sweet-tootsie habit.

* * *

Dorothy Lamour isn't a sultry, exotic siren at all in real life. She wrinkles her nose like a three-year-old when she laughs, and she still relies on baby talk when she's in a romantic mood.

Garson Kanin, the film's wonder boy, carries an ornate gold cigaret case which he parks on the table in night clubs. But the case usually remains unopened all evening while Kanin takes his smokes out of a crumpled paper sack.

In all his hectic fire-going days, Mayor LeGuardia has never sped to a false alarm. . . . Kate Smith's idea of a wonderful lark is to be allowed to go into a kitchen and bake a giant chocolate cake. She'd rather read recipes than Shakespeare.

When a day passes without Billy Bernice, of "Boys and Girls Together," getting a letter from home, she calls up her parents in Tulsa, Oklahoma, on the backstage telephone, reverses the charges—and asks them what's the matter!

* * *

When Maurice Chevalier was the Charles Boyer of film idols, the straw hat he always wore in pictures was a made to order chapeau that cost fifty dollars—until one day an enterprising hat manufacturer presented the singing Frenchman with a $2.95 ready-to-wear off-the-shelf straw lid in exchange for his autographed picture to display in hat store windows. Chevalier promised to wear the free hat until it wore out. Last month the hat company received a letter from Chevalier telling them that he had kept his word, and had worn the hat for eight years.

* * *

Jack Dempsey is an amateur prestidigitator, and loves to show you magic tricks by the hour. His favorite trick is breaking a lead pencil in half with a dollar bill—if he succeeds in doing that at the first try, the day is a sunny day.

Best parodist of her own song hits is Ethel Merman. Her parody on "My Mother Would Love You" would make Dwight Fiske shriek like a banshee.

All the race track jockeys who haunt the Broadway night spots are interesting people. They love all kinds of dancing, from congas to Lindy's hop—and always with girls who tower a foot or two over their heads . . . Bea Lillie always blushes a little when called upon to do an encore.

* * *

Shep Fields tells people his musical style, "Rippling Rhythm," all started when he heard his wife sipping an ice cream soda . . . Tyrone Power is addicted to the loud red, yellow and green plaid socks that Princeton boys like.

Herbert Jacoby, who presides over the intime Ruban Bleu, was once one of France's leading economists. He wrote a high school textbook on the subject . . . Peggy Hopkins Joyce often takes her prize Sealyham to night clubs with her.

John Barrymore has a collection of Wonderful Old World puppets, but has always been afraid to play with them for fear someone would discover and say "Look at that Barrymore. Going batty!" . . . Bill Robinson likes dancing jam sessions the way a hot trumpet player likes swing band jam sessions.

* * *

Ione Smith, the tall blond chorus girl in the Wynn show, plays a saxaphone in her spare time. In her home town she was a member of the musicians' union—she used to lead a band!

Benny Baker, the comedian, is always buying hats, but he can't find one that's becoming to him, so you usually see him strolling across Times Square hatless . . . Edward Arnold, the portly film star is an excellent cook. He likes to invite friends to his house, serve them an elaborate menu of his own fixing, and then call the Brown Derby to send over his dinner.

Marlene Dietrich loves extravagant clothes, and loves to be known as a woman who wears extravagant clothes. But the most becoming outfit I ever saw her wear was a gray flannel suit, a white silk blouse and a gray tweed topcoat. Boys, that was glamor!

* * *

* * *

Howard Ripper talking about Charles C. Payne, who beat him for county treasurer in Tuesday's election . . . Rex Zediker looking over construction operations at the new apartment he is building in the west end of the city . . . Clerk of Courts Fred R. Zellner commenting that the new parking meter posts don't look much like the old hitching posts that used to serve about the same purpose.

* * *

Della Gandert homeward bound and waving a cheery hello to passersby across the street on Park avenue west . . . Gus Baer, Dem leader, grinning as he stops to discuss the outcome of the election with friends.

* * *

Guy Stewart dropping into the press room at the courthouse at three a. m. on election morning to cheer up perspiring newspapermen . . . Arliss Porter catching a two-minute nap between precinct reports at election board headquarters . . . Don Kirkpatrick making plans for the Junior Association of Commerce formal dance, Nov. 16 . . . Mrs. W. W. Stark admitting that she had her new canary yellow car painted black before driving it.

* * *

Fred Holl telling friends about the virtues of the Optimist club . . . Mrs. James M. Hill and Mrs. Glenn Vinson at the Mansfield-Leland dining room . . . W. H. G. Kegg, Lumbermens Mutual) wearing only one political button Wednesday after having a lapel full the day before . . . Ed Wiyllie, just finished with working on the one-mill levy campaign, out selling tickets for the Saturday night dance sponsored by the Parks association, and which will help finance the hopes—the community Christmas carols.

* * *

Richard Ripper talking about his recent trip to Lynchburg, Va., where he visited Elsie McConnell, a student at Randolph Macon college . . . They attended a formal dance and football game while he was there . . . Edith Fletcher Jameson greeting Wayne Williams and Bill Dworski in front of the Ohio theater . . . Supplies, Bantamweights Play at Fairground Sunday

Meet Tough Rivals

By CHARLES MARTIN
(News-Journal Sports Editor.)

SOMETHING new in the way of football attractions will be presented in Mansfield for the first time Sunday.

It is a doubleheader grid engagement featuring two Mansfield teams—the Automotive Supplies and the Eagles Lodge Bantamweights — at the Fairground.

* * *

The Bantamweights, one of the powers in the state, will lift the curtain on the program at 1:30 p. m. by clashing with the Akron Local No. 5 while the Supplies square off against the Lorain Police Barracks in a tilt scheduled to start at 2:30 p. m.

* * *

Coach Earl McMullen's Supply outfit will be gunning for their third straight win of the season against Lorain. The Mansfielders have beaten the Sandusky Maroons, 14 to 6, and last week dusted off the Columbus Avondal Athletic team, 26 to 8.

It's more than just a game to the Bantamweights Sunday for they have a chance to claim the state bantamweight championship if they can turn back the Akron team. Akron scored a 6 to 0 win over the Mansfield club in a tilt early this season.

The state title is held by the Cleveland Skippies, but it is reported that the Skippies will disband and the Eagles team is considered by many in the bantamweight circles as the leading contender.

* * *

Lorain is expected to provide stiff opposition for the semi-pro combine. The Police outfit beat the Sandusky Maroons, 19 to 6, and battled the Akron Bulldogs to a scoreless tie.

* * *

The Supplies stopped the Maroons, 14 to 6, and lost to the Bulldogs, 6 to 0. On comparative scores the Lorain club is a touchdown better than the Mansfielders.

Grid Stars Tyger Combine Faces

Cornell Denies Charge

Athletic Director Tells Ohio State In Letter To St. John.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The controversy between Ohio State and Cornell universities over asserted coaching from the sidelines gained fresh momentum today via a letter from James Lynah, Cornell athletic director, to L. W. St. John, head of the Ohio State athletic department.

* * *

Lynah denied charges by St. John that the Cornell football team was directed from the bench by Coach Carl Snavely in beating Ohio State at Ithaca Oct. 19, and took exception to the publication of the accusation "before your complaint reached those concerned."

* * *

Lynah wrote letters to St. John and Asa Bushnell, commissioner of the Western Intercollegiate Football association, saying, "I am withholding release of these letters until Thursday morning in order to have them reach you before you read their contents in the press."

Lynah wrote:

"I hold in the highest esteem any man who has the courage of his convictions and, holding the 'unreserved conviction' you express (that Snavely broke the football rules by signaling from the bench) I too feel that you were bound to report your convictions.

"But I take decided exception to your releasing for publication a complaint based on 'unreserved convictions' before your complaint has reached the one to whom addressed and before any of those concerned in your complaint had been made aware that you would would submit a complaint.

"In other words, you chose to convict in the eyes of the public, on a charge of violating the letter of the rule and the code of sportsmanship, a man of unimpeachable character and of the highest standards of sportsmanship, who enjoys the respect and confidence of the entire university community, before placing a charge against him.

* * *

"At the same time you cast aspersions upon the ability of our two quarterbacks who, in our opinion, have fully demonstrated that they are fully competent to direct the team."

St. John declined comment on Lynah's letter.

SPORTS NEWS-JOURNAL

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

TULSA, Okla.—(UP)—Chet Benefiel is a good coach of a good football team.

His Tulsa U. Hurricanes have licked T. C. U. and Detroit, among others, this season. As a matter of fact, the Hurricanes have blown with tremendous violence save for one Saturday afternoon.

* * *

That was the afternoon of Oct. 5th, at San Antonio, when they ran into Homer Norton's national champions, the Texas A. and M. Cadets. They still are flying flags at half mast in Tulsa for what happened down there in the home of the Alamo.

* * *

The result was something like 41 to 6, with Johnny Kimbrough and his comrades on you guess what end of the score. I was talking to Coach Benefiel here yesterday, and being as I am going to see the Aggies against S. M. U. in Dallas Saturday, I asked him a few questions about the club.

You know—the stock stuff. Is Kimbrough as good as his press notices? Do the Aggies have the pulverizing power they are credited with? What makes 'em click: power, speed, running, passing, or all around ability?

Coach Benefield didn't answer a single one of the questions. He simply reached into a drawer of his desk, pulled out a passel of papers, and handed them to me.

"That's the report of my scout, who watched the Aggies in a couple of games before they played us," he said. "The scout's name is Jack Starrett and he is one of the best in the business. He knows football and every word of his report is true."

After I had digested an awesome, superlative-studded report on the Aggies who have won 17 straight games, Coach Benefiel added a bit of information on the Aggies. . . . Here it is in abbreviated form:

You don't dare tackle Kimbrough. . . . He'll either kill you or wade right through you. . . . He must be stopped with a rolling block. . . . The Aggies have the greatest downfield blocking this section of the country has ever seen.

The line is big, rangy, fast and likes to play a full 60 minutes.... The team does not go in for sheer power. . . . As a matter of fact, its passing game is its most effective weapon, but if you protect against that, Kimbrough breaks your heart through the middle.

* * *

Kimbrough will always make three yards, even on a bad pass from center on a wet field and without any blocking. . . . The Aggies play the cleanest football in the Southwest conference.... They hurt and bruise you, but they do it in a nice, friendly manner.

A man who wouldn't back them against any team in the country should have his head examined. . . . Their only weakness is a lack of capable replacements, and this, plus Coach Matty Bell's genius at setting a defense, may give the Aggies plenty of trouble in Dallas on Saturday.

Name Manager Next Tuesday

President Bradley Denies Ruth Is In Running.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— A new manager for the Cleveland baseball club will be named next Tuesday, President Alva Bradley said today before leaving for New York.

* * *

He denied that Babe Ruth was being considered for the position and stated that his trip "has nothing to do with baseball or the Cleveland ball club."

* * *

Bradley indicated that the successor to Oscar Vitt as pilot of the team had already been selected.

Luke Sewell, Cleveland coach of the past season, and Roger Peckinpaugh were reported the leading candidates for the post. The choice was narrowed down after Stanley (Bucky) Harris, mentioned prominently as a candidate for the job, signed a new contract to manage the Washington Senators in 1941.

OPEN INVESTIGATION ON CONDUCT OF GRID TEAMS

TOLEDO—(INS)—An investigation of alleged charges that Toledo high school football teams, specifically Waite high, were guilty of unethical conduct of athletic affairs began today by members of the Toledo school board.

The board also voted to cancel Waite's scheduled game at Portland, Ore., on Nov. 29, so that the team would be able to play a charity game here the following day.

Baron Leader

It's Captain Bill MacKenzie of the Cleveland Barons this season. In order to have a player closer to scene of action, Coach Bill Cook has appointed the new defense star to the captaincy of the team. MacKenzie is well-liked by his teammates and his inspiring work on the ice has helped the Cleveland hockey outfit to capture three straight league games. The Barons face the Buffalo Bisons on Saturday night at the Arena.

PHILLIES TO SELL WALTER HIGBE TO HIGHEST BIDDER

PHILADELPHIA —(U.P.)— Walter Kirby Higbe, right-handed pitcher of the Philadelphia Phillies will be sold to the highest bidder, President Gerry Nugent announced today.

Negotiations for Higbe's transfer were understood to be under way between the Phils and the New York Giants, the Cincinnati Reds and the Brooklyn Dodgers. The Dodgers were said to have offered $125,000 for the big right-hander, while the Phils asked $150,000.

Madison High Rings Down Curtain on Season Friday

By BOB FLOHR

MADISON high school will ring down the curtain on its 1940 football season at 8 p. m. tomorrow on the Madison field when it plays host to Loudonville in its annual homecoming tilt, and goes after its first victory of the season.

* * *

The game is one of ten scheduled for this area this week, and will also close the season for several other elevens in this vicinity.

Mansfield high's Tygers will be idle tomorrow night, but travel to Canton Saturday to engage Canton McKinley in an afternoon tilt.

Madison, which has failed to win one game this season, will be going after its first win in the homecoming tilt. The Rams have played eight contests this season, losing every one of them, for the worst season in several years at the school. A special homecoming program will be presented during halves.

Crestline will also hold its annual homecoming game Friday night, playing host to Bellevue high in a grid contest scheduled for 8 p. m. A special program has been planned for the evening.

Other Friday games will find Centerburg at Mt. Gilead and the Elyria Reserves at New London. Both are afternoon contests.

Butler high will hold its annual homecoming game Saturday at 2:30 p. m., playing host to the Bellville high Bluejays. This contest was originally scheduled for Friday afternoon but was changed to Saturday, according to an announcement yesterday by Coach Bob Burgett of Butler.

The six North Central Ohio conference elevens will see action this week, all scheduled to play night games Friday. Results of these games will have a big bearing on the final outcome of the N. C. O. race.

* * *

Heading the list will be the Ashland-Bucyrus tilt at 8 p. m. Friday at the Lane Street athletic field at Bucyrus. This will be homecoming night for Bucyrus, with all former Bucyrus high football players invited to attend the game.

Other N. C. O. tilts will find Marion at Mt. Vernon and Galion high entertaining Shelby.

CINCINNATI PLAYS VOLS

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—The University of Tennessee has been placed on the Cincinnati 1941 football schedule for a game on Oct. 25, it was announced today by Coach Joe Meyer. The Bearcats played the great southern eleven once before — in 1919 — and lost 33-12.

Varsity and Freshmen Meet

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Coach Francis Schmidt got a glimpse of the men who may star on his grid teams during the next three years today when the varsity took on the freshmen team in an annual game.

* * *

* * *

Following the game against the freshmen—in which the varsity is a heavy favorite—the Bucks will forget football over the week-end and then prepare for the Illinois game a week from Saturday. Illinois plays powerful Northwestern this week and probably will be "softened up" for Ohio State.

Minnesota's Brand of Football Baffles Michigan

Picks Michigan, Washington to Annex Top Tilts

Carver Strings Along With Teams Which Had Rest Periods Last Week.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK—(INS)—Here they are without preamble or advance alibis, the probable winners of next Saturday's two biggest football games, the two that will share national interest:

Washington to beat Stanford; Michigan to beat Minnesota.

If we've missed them we've missed them quick, as the saying goes, but the more we think about it the stronger is the conviction that the Huskies and the Michiganders must be figured to have a little edge in a pair of battles that are almost toss-ups.

* * *

The battle on the coast will go a long ways toward settling the Pacific conference championship, for both teams are unbeaten in their own company, and the winner probably will wind-up ultimately in the Rose Bowl.

* * *

Michigan and Minnesota also will shed some temporary light on the Big Ten conference campaign. The winner of that one will be handing the other team its first defeat of the year, in or out of the circuit.

We like Washington and Michigan for almost identical reasons—both rested last week and should be a little better because of it. Of course, Michigan also has Tommy Harmon and his blocker, Forest Evashevski.

However, aside from all that we'd like to point out that if those picks go wrong, in neither case will it be an upset. We simply are taking rested teams over teams that played tough games last week.

And how about the rest? Here they are arrived at in our own inimitable way:

EAST.

Cornell over Yale, Notre Dame over Navy, Boston college over Boston university, Georgetown over Maryland, Penn over Harvard, Mississippi over Holy Cross, Wisconsin over Columbia, Purdue over Fordham, Manhattan over Marquette, Brown over Army, Penn State over Syracuse, Pittsburgh over Carnegie Tech, Temple over Villanova, and George Washington over Bucknell.

MIDWEST.

Northwestern over Illinois, Nebraska over Iowa, Michigan State over Indiana, Oklahoma over Kansas, Missouri over Colorado, and Tulsa over Catholic university on a scanty schedule, which will be topped, as previously mentioned, by the Michigan-Minnesota game.

Several Big Ten teams will be playing outside the circuit, while the same applies to Nebraska, Big Six leader, and Tulsa, pace-setter in the Missouri Valley.

SOUTH.

One of the toughest of the day down in this section will be the virtual tossup between Tulane and Alabama, and we like the former. We also take Auburn over Clemson, Georgia over Florida, Kentucky over Georgia Tech, South Carolina over Kansas State, Mississippi State over Louisiana State, Wake Forest over North Carolina State, Tennessee over Southwestern and Duke over Davidson.

With Tennessee and Mississippi both playing out of the Southeastern conference, and Clemson doing likewise in the Southern, the one notable change likely in the Dixie circuits is Duke tying Clemson for leadership by downing Davidson.

* * *

The big game in the Southwest will be between unbeaten Texas A. and M. and Southern Methodist, with the former favored. In others Rice figures over Arkansas, Texas over Baylor.

* * *

PACIFIC COAST.

Having picked Washington over Stanford, we move on from there with Oregon State over Washington State, Oregon over U. C. L. A., Southern California over California, and, intersectionally, St. Mary's over Duquesne.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK — (AP)—Cornell, at 1-10, will be the year's shortest-priced favorite against Yale Saturday.... Just the same, the boys from Syracuse (who played both) say Georgetown would beat Cornell. And how's that for leaping on a bandwagon? . . . Only scar Joe Louis carries around was received when his brother crowned him with a hoe during an argument in an Alabama cotton patch.

* * *

Mrs. Leo Durocher is plenty worried because she hasn't heard from "The Lip" since he went on the first hunting trip of his life in Utah two weeks ago.

* * *

HEX DEPARTMENT.

Ken Overlin believes not even the devil can jinx him. . . . His first fight with Steve Belloise was Ken's 13th start in his 13th year of fighting—and all of you remember what darned near happened. . . . Now, the re-match has been scheduled for Dec. 13—which is only Friday the 13th!!

* * *

PEOPLE YOU KNOW.

Gabe Paul, secretary of the Cincinnati Radios, is having himself a fine old time cabling his friends from Havana to join him for dinner—the next night. . . . The football Giants have sent Grenny Lansdell, who carried Southern California to the Rose Bowl in 1938, back to the farm for seasoning.

* * *

Attention, co-eds: Love plays for Illinois; Spendlove for Utah; Loving for Illinois, and Younglove for Washington. . . . And Iowa State has a Darling, Centenary an Angel, Rice a Posey, and Washington and Lee a Trueheart. . . . Get going, sisters.

* * *

FOR CRYING OUT LOUD.

Louis vs. Al McCoy for the title. Good grief; if Joe hurdles that one, the least they can do is to give him a return match with Paychek or a shot at Unknown Winston.

* * *

Team Seeks 7th Win

Gophers Have Registered 6 Straight Wins Over Wolverine Club.

By STEVE SNIDER

CHICAGO — (UP)—There's something about Minnesota's brand of football that has Michigan baffled, hurt and plenty mad.

1. Minnesota has stopped Tommy Harmon not once but twice.

* * *

2. It's the only team in history ever to win six games in a row from Michigan.

* * *

Either feat is a heroic task and the string still may not be at an end, for Minnesota will be no less than an even choice against Michigan in their crucial meeting Saturday before a sellout crowd of 64,000 at Minneapolis.

This clash of the Big Ten's last two undefeated, untied teams is spotted as the number one game of the day and out of it probably will come the successor to Ohio State's defending conference champions. Should Minnesota win it, the Gophers can expect to continue undefeated with a fair share of the breaks. Michigan, however, still must meet Northwestern and Ohio State. It's a tougher road, but passable.

Northwestern's success in an 80-yard march down the middle last week brings a note of cheer to Michigan, which has in Harmon and Bob Westfall two fast starting backs with a better reputation than either Red Hahnenstein or Don Clawson who did the business for Northwestern.

There is little basis for statistical comparison on their Big Ten efforts since Michigan has played only Illinois in the conference, while Minnesota was knocking off Ohio State, Iowa and Northwestern.

Against somewhat weaker opposition, Michigan has been nigh perfect, scoring 130 points against California, Michigan State, Harvard, Illinois and Pennsylvania. Michigan State's two touchdowns are all the Wolverine defense has permitted.

Every team Minnesota has met has scored at least one touchdown, a total of 45 points to Minnesota's 97.

In two Michigan games since Harmon burst onto the scene, however, the Minnesota defense has been airtight. In 1938 and 1939, Harmon was held scoreless in two Minnesota victories.

* * *

He had a net gain of 89 yards in his sophomore year and a net of 26 yards last year. In 1939 he fumbled twice and each time Minnesota recovered.

* * *

The Gary, Ind., tornado already has cleaned up one piece of revenge—against Illinois. He comes out for another this week and he'll have the help he lacked last year. Capt. Forest Evashevski, his chief blocker, will be in there and even if he is forced out by further injury, a newcomer, George Ceithaml, can take over effectively.

REPORTS THAT WILSON IS TO MANAGE CUBS DENIED

PHILADELPHIA —(U.P.)— Reports that Jimmy Wilson, former Philadelphia manager and present Cincinnati Reds coach, would succeed Gabby Hartnett as pilot of the Chicago Cubs, were denied here today.

Wilson's wife said a trip to Chicago, which gave rise to the reports, was on other business.

Youth Passes Harmon

Oklahoma A. & M. Player Jumps Back Into First Place.

By GAIL FOWLER

SEATTLE — (AP)—Sophomore Jimmy Reynolds of Oklahoma A. & M. is right back where he was four weeks ago—in first place among the nation's gridiron ground gaining leaders.

* * *

Figures released by the American Football Statistical bureau today show that Reynolds turned full speed ahead to rise again to first in total offense—gains rushing and passing. His season total of 852 yards made him the leading rookie back of the year.

* * *

Statistically, he displaced Michigan's Tom Harmon, leader the previous two weeks, both in total offense and as a "workhorse." Harmon was idle last Saturday but still ranks second with 833 yards.

Reynolds, tenth among the rushers, has packed the ball 147 times and thrown 56 passes for 203 total plays, comparing with the 1939 high at this point of 177 offensive plays by Ernie Lain of Rice.

Rushing leader of the week is Al Ghesquiere of Detroit who has carried the ball 87 times for 617 yards. Dave Allerdice of Princeton still leads the passers with 51 completions. Owen Price of Texas Mines again heads the punters with a 48.15 yard average 26 punts, Jack Jennings of Oklahoma retains pass-snatching honors with 19 for 252 yards.

The leaders:

Total offense — after Reynolds and Harmon come Johnny Knolla of Creighton, 832, and Hal McCullough, of Cornell, 664.

Rushing offense — Ghesquiere, Detroit, 617; Tony Gallovich, Wake Forest, third last week, 585; Harmon, Michigan, first last week, 580.

Pass offense—Allerdice leads on the basis of unofficial figures with 51 completions in 103 attempts. Then comes Jack Jacobs, Oklahoma, 41 of 79; Bill Sewell, Washington State, 39 of 80, with figures missing on his brief appearance against Idaho last week.

* * *

Punting—after Price comes Jacobs of Oklahoma, who booted nine punts for a 52.30 average against Nebraska last week, most of them quick kicks, bringing his season average for 26 punts to 47.85; Glenn Dobbs, Tulsa, first last week, is third at 45.61.

* * *

SOLD FOR $1,500

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Mr. Voci, two-year-old pacer owned by Walter Dunwoody, Newark, O., horseman, brought a top price of $1,500 at the Ohio Horse Sales company auctions at the state fair grounds yesterday. The horse, which set a record of 2:03¾ at Lexington, Ky., a month ago, was purchased by C. B. Alexander of Cleveland.

BEST SELLERS

AKRON—(INS)—Rubber bands are used more widely than any other of the 32,000 products of the rubber industry, according to statisticians of the B. F. Goodrich company. Annual production is placed at more than ten billion bands, made from the highest grade crude rubber to provide maximum elasticity.

GLEN FALLS, N. Y.—(INS)—Edwin B. Fridenstine, well known Fort Edward-Argyle road farmer, was on his way to visit his wife in Glens Falls hospital. And he got there—in the Glens Falls hospital ambulance. His car crashed headon into a truck driven by B. Frank Thebo of Fort Edward.

CIVIL STAFF OF ARMY ENLARGED BY 50 PER CENT

War Department Expects To Employ 50,000 More In Various Jobs.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The War Department expects to employ more than 50,000 civilians—almost one half as many as its present total existing non-military staff—to meet demands of the defense program.

These estimates are based on testimony given to the house appropriations committee in executive session during consideration of the third supplemental defense appropriation bill. They do not include hundreds of thousands of persons who are expected to obtain work in factories turning out rearmament orders or those employed indirectly in other Federal departments or agencies in the defense program.

Latest statistics showed the War Department has a total civilian staff of 113,138 persons of whom 5,726 are located in the District of Columbia. Many of the new jobs are temporary, others are permanent. In general, the employes will be taken from Civil Service Commission rolls whenever possible.

Army officers told Congress that almost 30,000 civilians will be needed in various jobs for the medical department. About 4,800 others are to be employed as nurses, another 2,131 to establish finance offices in the field, and about 5,000 will be hired for plant, repair and maintenance work in the quartermaster corps' activities.

The estimates showed that 8,302 others will be needed for furnishing the army with all types of supplies from food to office equipment, during the next six to nine months.

In addition, Congress voted funds for employment of 99 hostesses, and 40 librarians for the new training centers as part of the recreational program being developed for recruits and conscripts.

NUMBER 13 FAILS

BERKELEY, Cal.—(INS)—Thirteen an unlucky number? Edward M. Fitzgerald, 59, can't quite make up his mind on that score. Appearing before Police Judge Oliver Youngs, on a drunk charge, he explained that he was born on the 13th day of the month and so was his wife and it was on the 13th of the month that he was arrested while celebrating his wedding anniversary. Judge Youngs sentenced him to work 13 hours for the city or $10 fine.

Utilities King Faces Trial

Boy In Audience Steps Up to Okay Mayor's Speech

NEW YORK—(INS)—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia is a seasoned public speaker ready for any emergency.

But he was a little surprised when he finished a cornerstone-laying address and had an 11-year-old boy pop out of the crowd to say:

"I don't drink," said Hugh, "but I could use some peanuts."

POOR DO HELP

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—(INS)—Most of the 40 persons who have applied in Kansas City for war refugee children are in the low income bracket and already have children of their own. More requests came from rural resident than from persons living in the city. These facts were revealed by John D. Neal, Secretary of the United States Committee for Care of European Children.

NEW LIFE BOAT HAS KITCHEN

Vessel of Pontoon Type Is Designed By Swedish Ship Engineer.

STOCKHOLM—(INS)—A ship's lifeboat of partly new construction has been designed and tested in Sweden by a prominent shipbuilding engineer, E. Sivard who, incidentally, constructed a boat of a similar type after the "Titanic" disaster.

The boat is of pontoon type, entirely covered, and built of steel. It measures about 21 feet in length, and is provided with a superstructure under which 32 persons can be accommodated.

At the bow and stern are small decks. Due to a large number of water-tight compartments, the boat is practically unsinkable. It is also self-draining and self-raising.

The boat is propelled by a 10 HP Bolinder Diesel engine, watertight enclosed, which gives it a speed of 5.3 knots when fully loaded. It has a wireless plant, which is constructed so that it can be used even under the worst conditions. Warm food and drinks can be prepared on a special stove, and the supplies are stored in watertight lockers.

The new life boat has undergone severe tests in the presence of Swedish shipping authorities with very satisfactory results. It also has been approved of by the Swedish Ship Inspection Board.

Bicycle Riding Rules Compiled By Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—(INS)—Because thousands of school children ride bicycles in Indianapolis, police have urged parents to enforce the following instructions:

Learn to ride in a safe place and stay off crowded streets until you can ride well.

Never carry a passenger.

Be sure you have a light in front and a light or reflector in the rear if you ride at night.

Do not ride without using your hands and if parcels must be carried, see that they are strapped to the bicycle.

BABY TEETH

BUCYRUS — Ripley's "Believe It or Not," this week carried an article of interest to Bucyrians when a drawing of L. M. Hollenbaugh, retired New York Central engineer of this city, appeared.

RITES PLANNED

BUCYRUS—Last rites will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Munz funeral home for Christ Leimenstoll, 77, retired Whetstone township farmer, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. I. N. Lewis, 803 West Mary street, Wednesday. Burial will be made in the Lust cemetery south of Chatfield.

Born in Holmes township, June 21, 1863, the deceased followed the occupation of farming during his entire life. He was married in 1887 to Elizabeth Wagner who died in 1896. Survivors include three children, Miss Vera Leimenstoll of Tiffin, Mrs. Archie Smith of Bucyrus, and Mrs. Lewis; three brothers, John of Humbolt, Kan., Daniel of Tod township, and Reuben of Ridgeton, O., and one sister, Mrs. Clayton Lutz of Bucyrus. Three grand children also survive.

GARBS FAMILY

Laundry Thief Takes Enough To Outfit His.

BERKELEY, Cal.—(INS)—Somewhere in Berkeley today there's a laundry thief who appears to be determined to outfit an entire family, including papa, mama and baby, with his loot.

Latest victim, Miss Polly Ann Arnold, told police, that a bundle of household linen was stolen from her porch. Then Mrs. Grace Harris came forward to say a bundle containing four of her husband's shirts disappeared from her parked automobile the day before.

DAUGHTER BORN

GALION—Mr. and Mrs. Edward Garverick of North Columbus street are the parents of a daughter, born Wednesday morning at the Good Samaritan hospital. Mr. Garverick is principal of the North school.

CURRANT BREAKFAST BREAD...

Here's one good reason you'll do your very best baking with Pillsbury's Best: Every year Pillsbury rejects—refuses to buy—hundreds of thousands of bushels of wheat. That wheat may be good enough for something—but no wheat but the best is good enough for Pillsbury's Best!

When baking day comes round, you want to bake your very best—for your own sake, and for your family's. Why take chances? Tell your grocer you want the flour that has been the dependable, unfailing friend of American women for over 70 years—Pillsbury's Best!

HOT CURRANT BREAKFAST BREAD

TEMPERATURE, 375° F. TIME, about 25 minutes.

1½ cups sifted PILLSBURY'S BEST Flour
1½ teaspoons Double Acting baking powder OR 2 teaspoons Single Acting baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
1 egg, unbeaten
½ cup milk
½ cup currants
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons sugar

1. Sift flour once, measure; add baking powder and salt; sift together twice.
2. Cream shortening; add sugar gradually; beat until light. Add egg; beat well.
3. Add dry ingredients alternately with milk; mix only until smooth.
4. Turn into greased pan. Sprinkle top with combined currants, cinnamon, and sugar. Bake in moderate oven. Serve warm with butter.

VALUABLE PREMIUMS: Save the THRIFT STARS which are packed in your bag of Pillsbury's Best Flour, and with other Pillsbury products. They are redeemable for women's fine silk hosiery, silverware, towel sets, boy's and girl's wrist watches, and other valuable merchandise. For free booklet showing all the premiums, write Pillsbury Flour Mills Company, Dept. 112, Minneapolis, Minnesota.
